SPI

The purpose of STRANGE PHENOMENA INVESTIGATIONS as an organization, is defined clearly by its title: to investigate strange phenomena in its many categories. Such categories include reported hauntings, ie apparitions, poltergeist events; UFO sightings and various forms of psychic happenings. SPI was formed in 1979. Involvement in SPI is more than academic beyond the appeal as a study. We are drawn to it because we share the mutual opinion that the subject demands investigation and definite awareness on as wide a scale as possible, which will help to establish a firmer foundation that: "There are such things".

The aims of SPI are to collect, research and publish accounts relating to most aspects of Strange Phenomena, and to inform the general public that there is, indeed, a case to be answered.

SPI does not hold or express any strict viewpoint as to the nature of the events of which we research; we keep an open mind and hope that by continued research we may come up with some answers to account for what as present eludes us.

EDITORIAL.

The paranormal in all its vastness of avenues, from telepathy, Out Of Body Experiences, Astral Projections, Mind Over Matter, etc etc, is still today not essentially 'proven'. We may insist that these things do occur, and occur to many people from all walks of life, but this does not necessarily "prove" to others that these experiences are genuine. It is, as I've said before, that here in 1993, mankind has not the sphere of knowledge to understand and verify these things, perhaps though, in 30-40 or even 50 years time from now, technology may provide us with the answers to open the paranormal door.

Our ancestral caveman would never have been able to understand or comprehend a television set should one have been shown to him by a visitor from the future. Likewise, we humans are living in a time in which we at present can't comprehend exactly what is happening to us with all these psychic events abounding all around us. What is going on? What are the real answers? I believe that only time and the advancement of mankind's technology will tell. Mankind always had a desire to fly. Trial and error brought the Wright brothers success. Trial and error in para-science is slowly bearing fruit. It is my strong belief that extra-dimensions will someday be proved. And again it is my own personal belief, that contained within these other dimensions; which can only be opened on certain occasions (it would seem!) perhaps only to certain people! will be found the answers to not only the psychic realms, but also "perhaps" to the UFO mystery itself!

What would the school master of the 1920's have thought of the slim pocket calculator? What would the Royal Air Force of the year 1914 have thought of the Stealth Bomber? What I'm saying is, what lies ahead and in store for us psychic researchers, what wonders to behold a telephone link up with the dead perhaps? This may sound crazy, but so too did the thought of a man setting foot down on the moon's surface to the people of the 17th century. Circumstantial evidence on the paranormal, is I'm afraid no good, this will convince no one. It's obvious that what is needed is hard factual evidence that cannot be ignored even by the hard nosed sceptics, (the armchair theorists)

So as we researchers struggle on with our enquiries into the vast complexity of the paranormal, let's hope that someday soon, the technology side will have improved in which will hopefully assist us in showing the way and providing the answers which have until now eluded us!

Government withholding truth

BY DON WORLEY

D. WORLEY.

After 28 years as a UFO Investigator, I am totally convinced that the "deny the truth" course of covert inner Government concerning the awesome aggressor that confronts us is an utter disaster. Denying the alien presence and keeping its trusting citizens unaware of the true state of affairs, has resulted in a different nation than we would have been by now. Had the profound realization of increasing alien inroads been known, this country and the world would not be the strife torn, poisoning, destroying place it is. Instead, all of humanity united in urgent defense, would transform society as we know it.

You the reader, little realise what is really going on, so let me give you a peek under the lid of the terrible Pandora's Box. Whatever the sources of these intelligencies, be it Extraterrestrial, co-existing dimensional, or from time, we know they can enter our state of existence with ease. The aerial UFOs have been very much with us for years and no doubt know us down to the bedrock. However, it is their penetration into humanity on a personal level that is most alarming. One form of this is called "lost time abduction". It is estimated that there are from 500,000 to three million abductees in the USA and millions more world-wide. A vast ongoing project involving human eggs, sperm, fetus theft, (I have 3 of those now) and cross breeding as well as other mysterious scenarios are going on.

Abductees are taken as toddlers and periodically thereafter. The aliens are efficient and often it's not only the parent but children too. In my 63 abductees, an unusual portion have Indian ancestry for some reason. Tiny implants are placed in abductees. A favourite way is up the nasal cavity to the brain area. These persons often have nosebleed problems. One cannot hide from the aliens!

Denying the alien presence has resulted in a different nation

It is also a disconcerting fact that the sly infiltrating aliens can also appear right in a normal daylight environment. I have seen 7 cases where, in the form of a white faced figure in black business suits, they have threatened persons.

Also alarming are the following: We have lost some Navy Jets when they were "sucked in or vanished" on intercept missions in the Puerto Rico area. Then there was the isolated midwest farm where the residents and other humans who were occasionally brought in by UFO, were all zombie like. The house had some very strange devices, and seemed to be a way-station for the humans who emerged back into society. We also have the southern major Data Communications Centre where 150 employees lost over two hours. Those coming to work woke up in the parking lot. Those inside the isolated nuclear proof building came to in the hallways. Five large burned circles were outside the building. Insulated cable in a lead lined room was affected, video tapes and computer data were erased. Three persons remembered small gray beings getting off ships, people being levitated through the hall ceiling, and more. Have you enjoyed your brief glance into Pandora's Box? I've not even scratched the surface of it all, but I'm sure you've got the picture. Clearly this is the worst kind of super criminal activity. Yet there are some persons called Pollyannas who trust and admire the aliens and believe it's all going to be for our own good. Gods using ungodly methods?

We gloom and doomers think this is foolhardy in view of the true situation. The sheer tragedy of all this is that you have a constitutional right to know the truth, and those who will eventually react with courage, have been kept ignorant. The foe is insidious and crafty, and things are really out of control as the silent secret invasion continues. Has inner Government made a grievous error in not awakening you? I'm positive it has.

(c) Don Worley. (Editor's note. Thanks for sending your article on Don. SPI sit on the fence as regards to any such alien presence, however, we like to present other views. As to a possible Government UFO cover up, well I'll say this, "I'm sure they know more than they are letting on" !!)

by R.D. Pearson B.Sc.

An entrancing display of flashing blue lights danced in the air. They were attached to nothing, yet looked electric. They had beginnings and endings appearing as fuzzy edges, electrical discharges not starting or ending with the usual electrodes, disembodied lights of short duration, in fact something the like of which I had never seen before. They appeared to have been triggered by the rousing songs of Douglas Shaw's circle as they wound up the power. I felt a prickle at the back of my head which others later identified as a breeze. These were the preludes to the most astonishing communication I have ever witnessed. In a little while, a babyish voice began. The sound seemed to emanate from somewhere near the top of the wall, about ten feet from where the medium's heavy breathing came. It was a little boy addressing his father sitting near me. A two way conversation developed. It seemed like the ordinary banter between father and son.

The medium was not involved in any direct way. The chatter went on for some time, but then a very strong clear adult male voice came through. The voice addressed me personally as "Ronald" and engaged me in conversation. We talked about the theory of gravitation I had been working on for the last six years and the spin off which offered explanations for the paranormal. Ultimately he told me his name was "Cook". He said he had been one of the students I had lectured at University. This was soon after my appointment. Unfortunately I was so amazed at the clarity of speech and the implications behind it all, that I just somehow could not seem to think of sensible questions to ask. I forgot to ask him his first name or that of the University. Douglas Shaw, the highly developed medium, has promised to try and find out these details at the next circle. Before I go further, I need to explain how I came to be there at all. It started with the new theory of gravitation. My specialist expertise lies in the areas of thermodynamics and fluid mechanics, disciplines both firmly rooted in the mechanics Issac Newton formulated in the 1600's.

Because his theory of gravitation turned out to be inadequate, Einstein had stepped in with a new abstract way of thinking which gave close agreement with all observation and became firmly established. Attempts to match it to "quantum theory" made over the next 60 years did not succeed, however, Quantum Theory is based on the idea that what we see as empty space is in fact a "seething mass of virtual particles". These are very short lived, minute and invisible. They push the particles of matter we can see, and so cause forces to arise. These are the forces of nature, such as those exhibited by objects carrying charges of static electricity. Until all explanations had a common quantum base, the "holy grail" of a 'grand unifies theory' could not appear.

The established approach clashed with the discipline with which I was familiar, and so I decided to take a close look at the problem. I went back to where the physicists left off early this century, and extended the mechanics of Newton without making reference to Einstein's theories or relativity at all. It took a long four years to formulate a mathematical theory capable of accurately matching all known observation. It paralleled Einstein's predictions, but was free from difficulties.

A first presentation of the new theory was made to a packed audience of over a hundred students and some physics staff, members at the University of Leeds England on the 18th of January 1990. A lively discussion ensued, and so the theory should take off from this point. What will be of greater interest to the readers of this Journal, is the spin off, because it provides scientific support for spirituality. An associated problem of long standing is that of 'wave particle duality'. When any tiny particle has a choice of more than one path, it does not choose one and ignore the rest as scientists expected. Instead it seems to spread out like a wave system to follow all options simultaneously. Existing explanations would not fit.

The Everett-Wheeler theory for example, demanded the existence of an infinite number of interpenetrating universes. The new theory of gravitation showed however, that ten per cent of space is filled with virtual particles. It followed that the total number of interpenetrating universes could not exceed about ten. In the new combined theory, everything is made from two kinds of energy, positive and negative, the "Yin and Yang" of energy, each totally dependant on the other for its existence. In each universe the two exist in equal amounts, so that there is an exact balance. The positive energy of a star, for example, is balanced by a tenuous halo of negative energy which stretches out for about a billion light years in all directions to produce the universally attractive force of gravitation. This halo is superimposed on the immense but exactly balanced energies of space, including the space inside atoms. Physics allows of other matter systems able to interpenetrate ours because their virtual particles do not couple their sub-atomic particles with our own. In the new explanation of wave particle duality, the sub-atomic particles of all systems of matter have very short lives, just like those of space and need to be continuously re-created. Only their energy is permanent. When a particle expires, this essence flows into an all pervading grid of criss-crossing fibres, which are fine grained even on an atomic scale and interconnect everything.

The places where re-creation is allowed, is controlled by numbers which are added like the ripples on a pond. If two pebbles are dropped in, the waves which cross over, add up in some places, and cancel out in others. The grid does the same, acting like a vast computer. Where the wave numbers add to the highest values, the new particles have the greatest probability of being re-created. What looks like a permanent atom, consists of highly temporary components. They wink in and out of existence at an astonishing rate, re-materialising at random. Yet they are confined within the limits allowed by the grid, so that the whole acts as an atom.

The picture explains wave particle duality by showing how particles appear to travel like waves along all possible paths simultaneously. It also shows that matter systems, and the life forms they carry, are deliberately contrived. More interesting still, living creatures could be composites of several interpenetrating systems of matter. They would be linked only by the grid and common gravitation. On the death of one component, the remainder would "live on", sharing a common memory bank. In this way, the idea that people could have indestructible "souls" is supportable by physics. In their world such "spirits" would deal with matter which would seem as solid to them, as ours does to us.

Furthermore, the other bodies need not be made from dominantly positive energy. It is this feature which is responsible for our 'inertia'. It takes the application of much force, acting through a considerable distance, to accelerate us to a high speed. Then a similar breaking force is needed to stop us again. In consequence, we can only move very slowly as compared with the speed of light. Other matter systems could consist of exactly balanced energies. People made from exactly balanced energy would have no inertia, and so could accelerate to any desired speed, almost instantly. They could float in the air at will by levitation, and yet could sit in a chair with weight adjusted to any desired level of comfort.

In this case however, there is nothing left for the halo needed to produce gravitation. Such systems could only have planets held together by the gravitation borrowed from our system of matter. They could only co-exist with the planets of our solar system, or even the sun itself, using these objects as gravitational anchors. This is very exciting because of the close match with descriptions coming to us via the mediums !! And this is why I started to take an interest in Spiritualism. The theory is fully described in a booklet written to supplement the Leeds lecture on gravitation and entitled, "Intelligence Behind The Universe", (see advert on previous page). In this booklet, suitable for a non technical readership, the new idea for wave particle duality is fully described, and it is shown that plausible explanations for all paranormal phenomena can be advanced when a grid having computer like properties exists to control all matter and motion. The spirit, Mr Cook, said that this concept was very close to the truth. There was an interpenetrating grid, but it was not universal as I had postulated. He said each galaxy was based on a separate grid structure. Also, I had the number of interpenetrating matter systems wrong. The correct number was seven he said, not ten. He urged me to press ahead with my technical book called, "Quantum Navigation".

Another less refined voice started to come through, addressing everybody in the circle one by one. He chided me for not responding, and asked if I was asleep. I wasn't but I was in a somewhat "flabbergasted state". Although the evening seemed to me a dramatic confirmation that we DO HAVE OTHER BODIES, that our minds DO NOT reside in the earth body, and that the spin off theory seems to be well supported by the evidence which can come through the route of mediumship.

Strange and Unknown

BY LEE WALSH

(Hitler's interest in the Occult, Symbolism, and the Swastika, is discussed in this article by writer Lee Walsh from Damariscotta, ME, USA)

Why did Hitler choose an inverted swastika inclined towards the left and enclosed in a circle? All authors are not in agreement as to whether or not this choice had a definite occult meaning and purpose in Hitler's overall plan for the future Germany, or even whether or not he had any interest in the occult at all. I believe that Hitler not only had a driving interest in the occult, but that he knew the power of symbolism as well as colour. Therefore, his choice of that particular symbol, combined with the colours of red, black and white, were deliberate.

When anyone sees the swastika they immediately think of the "Nazi Cross". Other forms of swastika have been found down through the ages and in many cultures. It is an ancient symbol, and dates back thousands of years relating to religion, and all good things, including re-creation and infinity. The symbol was used among the Indians of North and South America and has turned up in a number of civilizations including, China, Egypt, Scandinavia and Greece: having been found on Buddhist and Celtic monuments. Hitler was always enthralled with the music of Richard Wagner, for Wagner's music had a powerful influence on all occultists. Wagner had such strong feelings toward the occult that this powerful feeling came through dramatically in his operas. Many of his themes had their beginnings as an old Celtic tale, but Wagner would transform the tale to serve his own purpose and genius, many times using powerful situations combining Gods and men. Due to Wagner's "influence" on the occult scene, Aleister Crowley included him in his list of "Gnostic Saints".

The swastika itself, when adopted by Hitler, was turned backward, or inverted, inclined toward the left, and enclosed in a circle, the swastika band was also worn on the left arm. As it is known in Black Magic, when anything is inverted, (such as in the black mass), it lends more power. A counter clockwise swastika therefore, would lend more of the kind of power that Hitler wanted to evoke than would the ancient symbol for good. Also, a circle, if drawn counter-clockwise, would compliment the swastika and would also purport evil intent. The circle, a "hole within a hole" is normally something sacred, protecting and complete. However, a circle in itself is an eternal link for a common cause.

The "left" not only pertains to a radical or socialistic group, but "left" also has many traditional connotations of evil connected with black magic, hence the swastika inclined toward the left and worn on the left arm. The fact that the swastika is inclined would denote motion, and a swastika in motion becomes a circle, again the eternal link for a common cause. The colours that Hitler chose for his emblem are also significant, a black swastika in a white circle on a red background. Once again, we return to the Celts, (no comment Ed!) and the colour red. It is the colour of immortality, physical life, and energy. Perhaps most important of all, red is a defense against psychic attack, and can also be used in mounting a psychic attack. It was always the colour of magic, and considered a defence against the Evil Eye. I am sure that Hitler knew also that red denotes the symbol of brute force, forcible and positive actions and results. It is a colour for heroes, and those who are brought into the fold are responsive to red, the colour of war and conquest.

Hitler was a dynamic man, a dynamic speaker. The colour black commands respect, and is a very dynamic colour that enables a person to drive home facts emphatically. The colour is used to kill enemies, or summon the Devil for aid. On the other hand, in alchemy, black can mean germination and new life, something that Hitler wanted. In 1933 he said, "Our youth is our only hope for the future. Do you think that we bring them up only to sacrifice them on the battlefield?" We all know that Hitler wanted to create a race of super-humans and create new life.

While we usually think of the colour white in relation to purity and innocence, there is another association, that of death and unlimited forceful creative energy. Where three colours are combined, white as one of the colours, is the balancing element and a very valuable factor. Study is still going on as to the effects of the colours in shaping the mind and spirit of Nations. In total, the symbol that Hitler chose would add up to all he ever hoped to achieve and he, no doubt, believed that it would aide him to the ultimate end. The swastika, or a form of it, has been used in almost every esoteric society, so what went wrong?

For a time, the emblem projection that Hitler planned envisioned, and used, was doing its work well. However, all of those who deal in black magic know that something can go wrong, and many times it does. You do not call upon the Devil for help and give nothing in return. Hitler was a powerful man, he knew how to draw on this power and use it, to his ultimate destruction. Hitler once said, "the worst thing about marriage is it creates rights and claims to one's attention. It is far better to have a mistress". In spite of that, on April 28th 1945, Hitler married his mistress Eva Braun.

It is said that two days later on April 30th 1945, they both took their lives in a suicide pact. It has also been said that Hitler is still alive and well, (no doubt singing, don't you step on my burnt out shoes with Elvis, Editor, sorry Lee !). The Celts believed in eternal life, and it seems that Hitler was very well versed in the symbolism, beliefs, and invocations of these people. The "suicide" was close to the time of the Feast Of Beltane, a fire festival of the Celts, held near their Celtic monuments, (bearing the sign of the swastika) that expressed their strong belief in life beyond the grave.

S.P.I. BOOK REVIEW.

Books we recommend....

THE SECOND COMING. It's no secret that I'm a big fan of Andrew Collins books, and it was a pleasure to review his latest work entitled, The Second Coming. Psychic Questing is a subject that intensely interests me, books such as The Green Stone by Graham Phillips and Martin Keatman and The Eye Of Fire by the same authors, fueled this interest even further. Long time paranormal researcher Andy Collins has himself been involved with this psychic questing for a good number of years now, in which his highly successful book The Black Alchemist sold rather well in the paranormal/fortune community. This offering, follows on from that book, and continues the questing pursuit of Andrew and his girlfriend, Debbie Benstead.

The Black Alchemist is still at large, and leaving various artifacts all over southern England. Bernard, Andrew's psychic colleague, assists Andy in which we later learn that the Black Alchemist has been gathering religious relics in an attempt to gain finance for his own group. The story weaves through various heartstopping moments in which we wonder if the Black Alchemist will ever be found. The book's climax was a bit of an "anti climax", but that said, this book is well worth the money. I suppose that not everybody will accept the contents of this book, but let's be honest, Clairvoyance has provided bags of evidence over the years, the twist is, in this instance, is the psychic ability to detect and recover hidden or lost artifacts.

The Second Coming adds a new dimension in the sense of the author and his friends coming up against the Black Alchemist and his friends of Hekate. But do we find out who this mysterious Black Alchemist is? Well all I can say is, buy the book and see. I can promise you an enlightening read.

Predictions also fascinate me, particularly those referring to future events which allegedly effect all mankind. This booklet is subtitled Ezekiel 38 and Daniel's Visions Opened. They say that one can take anything or read anything from the Bible in a different light relating to your own belief systems, and the interpretation made by this author are, to my mind, simply a search to find if the recent trouble in the Gulf in which the U.S. and allied forces waged war against Iraq, can be found in Daniel's visions, who, incidentally, lived 2,500 years ago.

Certainly when one reads this booklet carefully, they can plainly see what "could" be strict references to the Gulf conflict. It also tells of Germany's rise to power again, (surely not !). There will be further American intervention in the middle east, although this time the result is not in their favour. They lose, and quite profoundly too ! The booklet's own claims on the back cover as follows.

- * The assassination or accidental death of President Bill Clinton within the year (1993) * Vice President Al Gore becomes the new President of the United States Of America. * President Gore leads the United Nations military forces against Iran, and Iran's military defeat. * Very soon after this, on a Christmas Day, the American forces will invade Israel's disputed territory according to their United Nations Resolutions. Israel will retaliate with Nuclear missiles against the invading American forces who shall be completely destroyed on the mountains of Israel. Also Europe united shall destroy the land of America with Nuclear missiles.
- * On this same Christmas Day, a great miracle shall happen when many living people shall disappear off the face of the Earth. * The predicted events to happen on this Christmas Day, shall start the time clock of seven more years to the end of a society as we know it.

Well not much to look forward to I'm afraid, but haven't we heard it all before eh? Nevertheless, it is an interesting wee booklet. Send £5.00 to Michael K. Callaghan New Jerusalem Publications, P.O. Box 24-037 Royal Oak, Auckland, New Zealand.

ALIEN SCRIPTURE

a remarkable new magazine investigating contact with Non-Human Intelligences

First issue only £2 ($5 airmail)
4-issue sub. £7.50 ($18 airmail)
from Kevin McClure
42, Victoria Road, Mount Charles,
St. Austell, Cornwall, England,

This is not a spiritual magazine he informs us, nor is it a UFO one, its a magazine which deals specifically with human beings and their perception, or rather interaction, with "something" we loosely define as alien be it allegedly from outer space or "inner space", (within ourselves). The first issue I found to be extremely interesting, with articles from Martin Kottmeyer, Hilary Evans, and Kevin McClure himself. This is an important field you know, and one which I'm glad Kevin McClure is devoting much time and attention to. Kevin also edits The Wild Places, a forteen magazine. His step into producing Alien Scripture deserves your support, of which I for one, will be giving mine. Subscription details above.

CROP CIRCLES, (A MYSTERY SOLVED)

BY JENNY RANGLES & PAUL FULLER.

Well it's maybe a bit of an adventurous title, but I'll tell you what, the authors may not be so far from the truth. For not only do the authors give a viable solution to the crop circle enigma, but the solution they offer, which I'll come to in a moment, could well end up completely solving the UFO enigma ! (yes, its a good a solution as that !!). Jenny Randles and Paul Fuller are in agreement with Dr Terence Meaden a meteorologist who suggests that a plasma vortex, a rotating ball of electrically charged air, which consist of tiny molecules of air that have lost negativity charged electrons, thus resulting in a positively charged cloud of ionized gas. This can be seen in most instances, as resembling the classic flying saucer shape, it crackles, it can stop cars, interfere with electrical systems and so on. This Meaden, Randles and Fuller, agree is the root cause behind the crop circles and UFO reports.

Not all crop circles are the result of this "plasma vortex" the rest, especially the pictograms, are the direct result of clever hoaxing, and not just Doug and Dave ! Most serious crop circle researchers now accept this fact. Anyone who still suggests that UFOs or alien vehicles are parking in our corn fields should make an appointment with their doctor, for they are in some dire need of help ! Trying to get a new and as yet sensible hypothesis proven to the public, is no easy task, just ask Galelio ! This book also features the work done by Michael Persinger and Gyslaine Lafreniere. Persinger and Lafreniere proposed that a column of invisible ionized air, (they call it a transient), could be created by forces within fault zones and then float around the atmosphere, which again could be construed as "fanciful flying saucers" ! Their theory is also shared by the work being carried out by Britains Paul Devereux who has written along similar lines.

You know mankind is always learning and to brush aside these theories just because they sound preposterous would be downright stupid. This should be given serious consideration, and when fully understood, may not only give us an understanding of our weathers strange properties, but may also tell us a little bit more about ourselves and the way we react to something of which we don't fully understand, and interpret that something

ALIEN SCRIPTURE BY KEVIN MCCLURE.

Kevin McClure should be applauded in regards to producing a new "concept magazine" which sticks to a particular field, that of alien contact, or "lack of it !" His new magazine Alien Scripture sets out articles in which he tells us in regards to Investigating contact with non human intelligencies.

with fancifull imagery. Randles and Fuller are to be commended on this fine book, and how I wish that every scientist had a copy. Wake up you lot, buy this book, for as I say, not only does it solve the crop circle enigma, but it's frightening what it does to some "Classic UFO cases", wow. It's certainly altered my perception on UFOs as alien vehicles I can tell you, and you'll never know how until you read this book yourself. One just cannot keep reading books that depict UFOs as alien vehicles, you simply must turn the coin over, look at the other side, see what's going on, see the alternative, for if you don't, then you shouldn't consider yourself a UFOlogist or crop circle researcher. Your search should lead you down different avenues, not the same one continuously. Check this book out now, you owe it to yourself to do so !

EARTH POWER - FACT OR FANTASY

By Kevin and Ingrid Carlyon

People flock to Britains ancient sites by the thousand each year, some for a day out, others who claim to be able to tune into an inner awareness and an energy as old as the Earth itself. Is there really an energy that effects us all ? Stonehenge and Avebury in Wiltshire, are just two of hundreds of sites in Britain which were built over three thousand years ago and are probably frequented by more people today than at any time in their history. No one really knows why these sites were erected, although modern scientific research indicates that the stones were aligned to the rising and setting sun and moon, and also acted like a pre-historic calendar to mark the seasons.

Many travel to these sites simply out of curiosity, but there are a growing number of people who claim to experience strange feelings at these places. Thirty eight year old Charlene Tate lives with her husband and two children in Ontario Canada. Each year she travels to Britain on what she calls "her pilgrimage". We asked her what her pilgrimage was all about. She explained. "I come to visit my parents each year. About six years ago I went on a trip to Avebury village in Wiltshire. It was a calm tranquil day, very warm and sunny.

There were few people about as it was early. I wandered through the avenue of standing stones there, thinking more about my financial problems at home, rather than the stones. I stopped at a large stone and touched it with one hand. It felt as though it was tingling.

When I placed both hands on it I had the most amazing experience of my life. I felt dizzy as though I was rocking, then a feeling that started in my toes swept up through my whole body, giving me a sort of orgasm. Each year I spend time going around the different stones, hoping for that same feeling, (I bet you do, Ed), but so far it hasn't happened. Charlene Tate is one of the many people who claim to have experienced such feelings at these sites. It would seem that her first experience was due to her mind being receptive, in a sixth sense sort of way. On her latter trips her mind was straining for an experience, stopping it rather than creating it.

These ancient sites have long been attributed with healing, fertility, and paranormal phenomena. It has been claimed that the ancient cultures who built such places were more in tune with the Earth and Nature herself. In the early 1920's, and inventor and manufacturer of photographic equipment, named Alfred Watkins claimed to have a visionary experience while exploring the countryside. He set about trying to prove an idea that he had. The idea was to cause uproar in the scientific and archaeological community of the time.

He claimed that most of the sacred and prehistoric sites in Britain including more recent churches, (which were normally built on preceding Pagan sites), were built to align with each. Furthermore, he claimed that the sites were markers of a natural "Earth Energy" which criss-crossed the landscape carrying power, similar to the modern "National Grid" which conveys electrical energy to our homes today. To this day, arguments continue as to the possibility of the existence of what Watkins called LEYLINES.

Many books have been published on the subject, including Watkins, The Old Straight Track. In his book, Earth Magic, Francis Hitching puts forward theories that the energy in the Earth is caused by underground streams creating a form of hydro-electricity. Where the stones and other sites have been placed, are markers for those who wish to use the natural electricity for healing and fertility purposes. It is a fact that modern medicine uses electricity to speed up the healing process in the body. Leylines are not only associated with stones and churches. Many of the hill figures originally carved into the chalk hills, also have legends of healing and fertility. Sara James, lives near Brighton, East Sussex. For several years the thirty one year old secretary had tried unsuccessfully to have the child of her husband David. Medical help did not heed the answer, so, after reading of the folklore of Sussex, and particularly the long man of Wilmington, she decided to try a crazy idea.

She had read that the giant, carved into the Sussex hillside near Eastbourne, had fertility powers similar to the other hill figure, the Cerne Abbas Giant in Dorset. Late one summer evening three years ago, Sara and husband David climbed the hillside into the figure and made love in the region corresponding to the sexual organs. Sara explained. "...It was a last try anything approach really. Of course we thought that we were nuts, but then people do do silly things in desperation. Nine months later I had baby Emma. If anyone asks me now if I believe in magic, of course I say YES !" Leylines don't always convey positive energy though as Ken Henwood from Newquay, North Cornwall found out a few years ago. He had been having really bad headaches and startling dreams. Pat, who he was later to marry and who sadly died two years ago, also experienced what she termed as 'nasty vibes'. A local person suggested that Mr Henwood should ask a dowser to check out his cottage for negative energies Mr Henwood very superstitious, agreed, and shortly after a dowser was called in. The dowser, Tim Michaelson, travelled from Somerset. He checked the area with dowsing rods and came to the conclusion that Mr Henwood was 'picking up' on energy emissions from a nearby tumuli, (Neolithic burial site) which was situated at the rear of the cottage. He suggested that the negative energy was caused by a leyline running through the area. Just as electricity conveys positive and negative energy, so are leys reputed to do, the latter negative Ley being called a 'Black Stream'.

The dowser suggested that he could divert the flow of the negative Ley by inserting copper rods around the cottage, so diverting the energy flow, and making the home harmonious again. (Editor's note. Something similar was tried in a case which SPI researched a few years back. The placing of these copper rods around a house). Mr Henwood explains the results from his caravan home in Porth, Newquay. When asked why he had left the cottage he said.... "The most stupid thing that I have ever done is to try and interfere with things that I don't understand. Shortly after the dowser had been there, things started to happen in the cottage. We both started seeing balls of light moving around the place, and one evening I was hurled down the stairs by a gust of wind. After that, electrical items started to pack up. Our three dogs started to behave strangely and became ill. The last straw was when my wife was rushed to hospital and died a few days later. If I ever get my hands on that bloody fool dowser I'll.....After Pat's death things got worse. Eventually I had to move for both financial reasons and to keep my sanity. (Editor's Note. Guess what, the case which I mentioned a moment ago, where we called a dowser in and he placed copper rods at certain points around the house, well that lady died a few months later, is there a connection ?)

It has been claimed that many ordinary streets and houses are on good and bad energy lines, and that everyday folk respond to surges of natural energy. Your mood changes, or health may be affected by this mystical power without you really knowing (MMMMM).

So how can you see if where you live is affected by a Leyline or Black Stream? Buy an ordnance survey map of the area in which you live. Mark your house on the map and then mark all of the local churches and ancient sites. When you are sure that you have found them all, place a ruler on the map and see if any three or four sites join up. The more that do actually meet up, the more chance there is that you have discovered a Leyline. Check how close the connected lines run to your home. If they go straight through it, and you have experienced problems in your home, it may be caused by natural Earth Energy flowing in a negative way. If you do feel that you have a problem of this nature, seek an expert to help you, not just a dowser as Mr Henwood found out to his cost !

A CAMPAIGN FOR ALIEN ACKNOWLEDGMENT
A BRIEF EXPLANATION

Thousands of people world wide now believe in the presence on Earth of alien beings. Beings observed, encountered, sensed, and communicated with. Beings of variable physical appearance and structure, whose very nature, operation and perhaps function, render them alien to the 'normal physics' of this planet. The evidence to support this belief is easily accessible to all those who choose to look, listen, read and watch. The evidence for an alien presence is so compelling, it becomes all the more astonishing, that an issue of such momentous proportions can continue to remain absent from major world debate.

WE, THOSE INVOLVED IN THIS SUBJECT, MAY NOT AGREE ON THE NATURE, ORIGINS AND INTENTIONS OF THESE VISITORS TO OUR REALITY, BUT I FEEL WE MUST COME TOGETHER ON THE ONE CENTRAL ISSUE, THE REALITY AND ACKNOWLEDGMENT OF THEIR EXISTENCE.

Twenty years ago I began to drift away from the UFO/alien subject. I had at that time seen enough, read enough, to be personally convinced of the legitimacy of the subject. I became, and still remain, frustrated by its failure to impact on a largely indifferent world. I have wrestled with this question. Is the nature of the subject structured to be a personal, and self evolutionary experience, or is it being directed to reach everyone on the planet? I have come to the conclusion that the alien experience is being structured to be both of these things, and the two can not be separated.

The thrust of this campaign is the reality of the alien presence, this is the 'bottom line' the underlying force, the alien presence has to be openly acknowledged by a world majority. I believe this is required at this time, I believe this is required if we are to go forwards.

Why do we, those involved, continue (especially in Britain) to disrupt the process of alien acknowledgment? It is my perception that many people, UFO groups and organisations are continually at loggerheads. Intelligent argument is healthy, but why do we consistently fail to act as one in our belief of an alien presence. Those in authority who know of this presence must surely be sitting comfortably on this failure, and the media can be excused for their continual apathy. When are we going to wake up and present one voice?

THE CAMPAIGN FOR ALIEN ACKNOWLEDGMENT - a shared one Earth movement - an attempt to bring all those involved together - an attempt to create one coherent and massively influential voice of opinion - a collective voice to the worlds media - a collective voice to all those in authority.

THE CAMPAIGN FOR ALIEN
 ACKNOWLEDGMENT

Open knowledge of an alien presence here on the Earth is bound to have a profound impact. I believe no one, regardless of how they may think themselves qualified to answer, can at this time paint a picture of just how the world will react to such news. The world has been deceived on this issue, the reality of the alien presence, a lack of a suitable picture can no longer be held as justification for this deception, the present world situation appears to be evolving to meet this reality. My impression is that most interested people are simply after the truth, or as much of the truth currently available to us. At the very least humanity may be able to become part of a greater reality, and this might just bring us to our senses regarding our world condition.

The strength of this campaign will be the sum of its members, its combined support, those groups and organisations already involved world wide must come together under one heading. In this way this movement can not and will not fail, it will not be ignored by the worlds media, who I believe will recognize the sincerity of this campaign.

I am sending out CAA signature sheets, when completed each sheet will list 25 names, addresses and signatures. Your signature is very important, it is your acknowledgment of the alien presence on this planet, it is your voice. Thousands of these will become the voice, that which can not be ignored. These sheets are available upon request. Please enclose a stamped addressed envelope.

The CAA is a product of our age and a product of physical events. The forces behind these events appear to be structuring them for our attention, perhaps our COLLECTIVE response is long over due. This response must be from us, the people, and not left to those in authority.

THE TIME IS RIGHT FOR THIS CAMPAIGN - THE CAMPAIGN FOR ALIEN ACKNOWLEDGMENT

Please let me know if you want to take part? I need your ideas and input. This is only a beginning. If you can help with publicity, I would like to hear from you. If you think this campaign is a bad idea, let me know why. THE CAA

THE LINDA MOULTON HOWE INTERVIEW.

(The following is an interview that I conducted with American cattle mutilation expert, Linda Moulton Howe at the Sheffield UFO Congress in August this year).

ABRIEVIATIONS : (MR) Malcolm Robinson. (LMH) Linda Moulton Howe.

(MR) Linda, when did you first get interested in strange phenomena ? (LMH) I did my graduate work at Stanford University, and between 1958 to 1979, I was a T.V. producer focusing on science and medicine and the environment. In 1979 there were stories for the second time about strange, and what were called animal mutilations in Canada, The United States, Mexico, Central America, Australia, The Canary Islands off the coast of Africa, and parts of Europe. And, as a documentary and film maker and T.V. producer, interested in the environment, I thought naively, that I could get into this story and get to the bottom of it, and that it might have something to do with environmental contamination. And, after one month of interviews, all I was hearing from the Sherriffs and Deputies, and even a few fellow journalists were these strange stories of mutilations. I also heard of encounters with something that was bigger than a football field, lights brighter than daylight shining over a field where mutilated animals were later found.

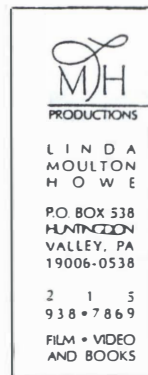

So it was in the process of trying to do a serious environmental study that I found myself going deeper and deeper into a hall of mirrors with a quick-sand floor that is this subject that some people call UFOs which is an old and outdated word for Unidentified Flying Objects, when in the 90's I think the Governments are dealing with Identified Aerial Vehicles which come from someplace else beyond here !

(MR) Now you deal specifically with cases relating to cattle mutilations, cattle which are found in unusual circumstances. What exactly is a typical cattle mutilation ? (LMH) The typical animal mutilation for the last 30 years is that ther's one ear missing, one eye missing, a circular piece of flesh taken around the missing eye. Sometimes the optic nerve is removed deep into the brain. The tounge is removed, deep in the throat. The genitals, whether it is male or female, is excised, and, in almost every case, the rectal area is cored out, as if you would shove a pipe into the back of the animal and take out the tissue. Everything is bloodless, and it is dry.

(MR) Is there a possibility of Occult sects or Government experimentation going on in regards to these cases ? (LMH) The animal mutilation mystery began in the 1960's before we even had lasars in operations. The issue of whether or not the Governments or Satanic Cults could be involved with the mutilation mystery, I think doesn't hold up to the facts. And the facts are, that for the past 30 years, these animals under pathology examination and necropsys done by veteranarians, odd things are found under microscopes. Since 1989 we have had over 30 animals in which the excisions were done with something hot enough to cook the heomoglobin, it must have been approximately 300 degrees fahrenheit. Another thing is, I've talked with veteranarians, they won't go on record, they won't be filmed, they won't be interviewed, but they tell me that they go inside the belly of an animal or the chest, in which there are no excisions on the outside of the animal, but when they get in the inside, they are seen !!

LINDA M. HOWE & M. ROBINSON.

In one case the heart is completely removed from inside the para-cardian sac, and theres no cuts or tears. In another case, an Arkansaw Vet, said that when he got inside the body of an animal, that the bladder was completely removed, and the cut was without any question, "surgical". Now we have Veteranarians that use Necropsy, and they are looking at things inside the body of an animal and they are saying that it's surgical. Somethings happening here that is not humanly possible. (MR) Now you have cases on file in which there appears to be some evidence of strange aerial crafts with lights seen in close proximity to where cattle mutilations are later found, have you drawn any conclusions to these ?

(LMH) The link between animal mutilations and something from somewhere else, I think has been evolving over the 30 years from eye witnesses who have seen either large glowing disks over pastures where animals are found, or what they say is a beam of light coming down into a pasture from something they can't see, they assume its a helicopter because the only thing we ever see a beam come out of is a helicopter.

But when you talk to the Sherriffs or Deputys, or people who have seen these beams, they can't hear anything in the sky, so its not exactly a helicopter as we would know it. Furthermore, a half dozen cases of eye-witnesses who have encountered in broad daylight, some kind of "non-human being", who's usually described as being small, gray skinned, or gray green skinned, with big black pointed eyes, either carrying a calf or living cows that disappear, or are later found mutilated, and I think that its important for all of us to pay attention to the eye-witness testimony of our fellow human beings.

(MR) Is there any particular state or territory in which cattle mutilations are more frequent ? (LMH) In terms of where animal mutilations occur, there seems to be a kind of geographical distribution, there are cycles. For example, in North Eastern Colorado and South Eastern Colorado, there have always been repeated cycles of mutilations. You could say the same thing about Southern South Dakota, or Northern South Dakota, you could say the same about parts of the South East, it is as if, whatever this phenomena is, it must have some reason for going back to parts of the country that it does go to, and we don't understand it. Why is it always seemingly one area that get these cycles and mutilations ?

(MR) Have you any speculation as to why the U.S. have these accounts, and not so much the U.K. ? (LMH) The issue of whether animal mutilations are occurring only in parts of the world, versus not other parts, well for example, the contrast between the United States and England. Sometimes I wonder if it has to do with cultural beliefs. In the United States we're a new country, we don't have a lot of old paragons and mythologies so the reports from the United States over the past 3 years, simply may have been more honest, whereas in England, there may have been as many mutilations, but they were dismissed as being something else, or they wern't recorded at all !

(MR) Now there is of course evidence of which domestic cats and dogs are found in much the same way, could you relate some cases pertaining to these, are there more cases relating to domesticated animals than say cattle ? (LMH) The most frequent animal found mutilated, are, cows first, second would be horses. After those two big animals, probably the next category animals which are reported mutilated in some fashion, would be domestic dogs, cats, occasionally goats, sheep, rabbits, pigs, every domestic animal. Now, in terms of the domestic cats, this is a part that has always bothered me. Humans place a great deal of affection about their dogs and cats, but the phenomenon for the most part, is focusing on an animal that we largely as a species, are killing every day to eat. So you could argue that it looks at our planet, it needs something, makes the distinction, based on what "we do", and goes after cattle. The problem is, when they, when whatever it is, seems to be involved with things like dogs or cats, it raises the big issue WHY ? Are they trying to get our attention ? The result of a person finding a cat, one woman from Plano Texas in 1991, her cat, a domestic house cat, had a collar with her address and number on it. The cat disappeared. I talked with a police detective from Plano Texas who said that he has 85 reports of missing domestic house cats that same summer from Plano Texas, and they had 8 "half cats". The front half or the back half of the cat would be reported missing, they never got two halves of the same cat. And they had a mutilated puppy. One woman went down to the humane society every morning, and stood there in her house coat waiting for her cat to show up, and it never did. (MR) Have you been hampered in any way by any authority or individual in your line of work? (LMH) In 1983 when I was at Kirkland airports office of special investigations, agent Richard Doddy, showed me a red briefing paper for the President of the United States about UFO crashes and alien bodies. I think that he was working for some kind of intelligence operation.

I did a Strange Harvest, (Linda's documentary on the subject, Ed) for the C.B.S. station in Denver, he now knew that I was working on the project, and that I must be stopped. At the time, everything that he said to me, was that they were going to release to me, films of discs in the sky, beings that had been retrieved, there was a major story, everybody was very excited. And this man promised that I was to see these films and photographs at a place outside of Washington D.C. And then when nothing turns up, when everything he says is going to happen, doesn't happen, well its so predictable.

(MR) Have there been any mutilations which have not conformed to the usual pattern of mutilation? (LMH) Yes one of the most puzzling aspects of the animal mutilation phenomenon, the animals that are found, are found as if somebody was trying to tell us something and we don't understand it. There was a man, he was in a District Attorney's office in Trinidad Colorado, and he was investigating mutilations that were occurring down there, this was in the 70's. And he said that one night he got a call late, after midnight, at home, and it was a nurse that had come in to begin her midnight duty at the local hospital and she always came in the back door, which was an emergency exit into the hospital.

And she said that lying on the steps going up into the emergency door, was a calf that she said had to have been unborn, because the little pods didn't even have hoofs, they were just soft little round feet, with just the beginnings of what was going to be hoofs. And there wasn't anything else, there was no marks on the body except this. The entire calf, looked like it had been "Blowdried" with a hair dryer. And that man has been haunted by it ever since. And they all said, "who in the world would do this, and why, and if its alien, what are they trying to tell us"?

(MR) What has been the conclusions of the specialists that have been employed on these incidents, what have they got to say? (LMH) Well one of the problems with animal mutilations is there hasn't been much ability to get a lot of scientific and medical analysis done because it costs so much money, and Shirriffs will say we haven't got a budget, and we can't get this sophisticated testing done. So since 1989, I've been trying to do whatever I could to get animals examined at least by a veterinarian, and if possible we could send tissue to a pathologist who has been co-operating with me in Denver Colorado, to have a look at it in a micro-scope, and at least tell me, was it cut to death, was it something sharp, or was it predator teeth, or was it cut with high heat. And so far since 1989 we have examined over 30 animals, and the majority of them have been cut with "high heat". In some cases a sharp instrument. Out of all those we only have 2 or 3 that showed up to be predators. That raises a big question about the rest of the world where mutilations are taking place. People don't have the money independantly to get the tests done. All of us are volunteering our time and energy in this, and so the scientific examination of these animals is definitely one of the weakest aspects, there's not much done.

(MR) Has there been anyone who has actually witnessed a cattle mutilation. (LMH) Well, with this in terms of hypnosis, there is a case of a mother and daughter who were travelling with three other people in a car outside of Houston Texas in 1973. They are all arguing about what a light is that's moving in the sky near the car. Finally the argument is becoming quite emotional and the driver pulls the car over to the side of the road and the mother got out. She remembers getting back into the car, the family remembers proceeding on down the road. Nobody knew that anything bizarre had happened, until later when the woman started having headaches and nightmares, and her daughter did too. Well in 1980 that woman did a hypnosis session with me for my documentary, "A Strange Harvest" with Dr Leo Sprinkle.

In that hypnosis session, she broke through her amnesia and saw a calf going up in a pale yellow beam of light, and she was suddenly inside of whatever this light was, we're assuming that it was a "craft". And their she watched two small three and a half to four feet tall gray beings, excise tissue from testicles and eyes. (Editor's Note we paused for a break at this point in the interview)... Under hypnosis, she penetrated her amnesia and she could recall seeing a calf going up in a pale yellow light. And then, as what happens in these abduction cases, she suddenly found herself inside of a round room with these two small gray beings that were excising tissue from testicles and an eyeball, and also a tounge. Ten years after that hypnosis session, I was able to do a hypnosis session with her daughter, who was one of the five in the car. The daughter didn't remember anything, and the daughter had resisted doing hypnosis for all of those ten years.

And finally her curiosity was getting the better of her. When we did that hypnosis with Dr John Carpenter from Missouri, "she" describes seeing a calf going up in a beam of light. She describes being in a round room, and she was seeing parts of animals beyond cattle in a room as if they were on some kind of exhibit that were being preserved. So, there were two or five people who were part of this sighting of a light which apparently the mother and daughter were abducted through, and the bulk of them saw a calf going up into a beam of light. And I think that even although its not conscious eye witness testimony to a mutilation, its still close enough to call that circumstantial evidence.

(MR) Now I believe that there have been cases in which unmarked helicopters have been observed in close proximity to these cattle mutilation sites. Is this correct, and do we know who they belong too? (LMH) The dark unmarked helicopters have been a part of the animal mutilation story since at least the 1960's. It's puzzling. I think the other Investigators and I, have come to the conclusion that the Government early on, knew that "something" was happening, and maybe they were able to monitor frequencies and they would go to certain pasture areas where they were picking up some kind of frequency, and maybe the whole job of those dark helicopters, was to monitor what was going on. Today, we're all beginning to have a keen sense that our Government is advanced enough now, that not only are they monitoring something, and getting to pastures that they may be trying to interfere, and that's a very provocative question. (MR) Finally Linda, apart from America, is there any other country which has a high concentration of animal mutilations on the same scope as America? (LMH) Yes, Canada for sure. Canada has always had its many mutilations as much as the United States, and Australia. There is a surprising number of cases from the 70's in Australia. There have been many mutilations reported in Mexico, South America, especially Brazil. Jacques Vallee studied them. There was a period of time in the 70's when the Canary Islands, off the coast of Africa, had many mutilations, including birds that were found with puncture holes on the sides of their necks. The holes went right through their feathers, the bone, the muscle, everything. Just like a plug neatly picked out of those birds.

England has had stories in which ponies, especially ponies, have been found flattened in circles, (Eh, Ed), there are several reports like that. And now we are in 1993, there have been four calf mutilations reported in England, an ear missing, eye missing, tounge removed in the throat, the genitals removed, the rectum cored out. And, by the spring of 1993, there have been over 30 reports of what the newspapers in England will say were horse slashings. Horses with puncture marks, horses with patches of hide removed, only hide deep, and they were being attributed to some kind of deranged individual. My question is, the same things been happening in Germany, at least a dozen horses in Germany, found punctured, pieces of tissue being taken. Is this a deranged individual, or is it a part of the animal mutilation mystery, which is taking, for some reason, a different characteristic, I don't know.

(MR) Well Linda, may I wish you continuing success with your research into animal mutilations. (LMH) and crop circles, and abductions, and what the Governments know.

(MR) Yes indeed, well every success. (LMH) Your welcome.

(c) Malcolm Robinson, Strange Phenomena Investigations. (Editor's Note. If you know of any animal mutilation of which deserves the attention of Linda, then please write to her at the address featured with this article).

GETTING A MESSAGE.

BY JOHN PLOWMAN.

Do you believe in a spirit world? To those whose answer is yes, I would say good. Where does this lead us? If your answer is no, I don't believe in that sort of nonsense, my response is, "how do you know it is nonsense. If you are a floating voter, and haven't made up your mind, then I suggest that it is a worthwhile subject to Investigate. Start with the hypothesis that there is a spirit world, and that information from this spirit world comes to us through mediums or psychics who act as channels for communication. The situation is equivalent to the hypothesis that there are remote galaxies, (astronomers believe in them) and that information from these galaxies comes to us in the form of light, through telescopes which act as information channels.

To what extent can the two hypotheses be compared? Firstly, the source of information is not accessible. Nobody can go there and physically check it out. Secondly, the source as described, may or may not exist. Our only way of knowing about the source is by information received remotely. Thirdly, the information received is likely to be degraded by the process of transmission. What is picked up will suffer from unwanted signals or "noise" introduced along the communication channel by other sources. The signal will also be attenuated, diminished by the presence of anything capable of absorbing it. Finally, the quality of the information received, will only be as good as the quality of the receiver. Any defects in the receiver will distort the signal, and may result in a misinterpretation of data.

THE LATE DORIS
STOKES. A GOOD
RECEIVER?

Another communication analogy which is applicable, is that of a prisoner of war who is allowed to write letters now and again to a relative. The prisoner cannot communicate freely. He can only write at permitted times and the letters are censored. The relative receives information ostensibly from the prisoner, but is the sender the prisoner himself? Is the description of prison life anything like the real situation? Is there a content of information from propaganda sources within the prison who are deliberately wanting to introduce spurious information? Do we really know that the prisoner still exists?

A relative receives a message through a medium, ostensibly from the deceased. Does the message come from the dead relative? Is the description of life "on the other side" anything like the real situation? Is there a content of information from spirit entities who can also make use of the communication channel? Does the person who has "passed over" still exist?

Let us examine some of the possible techniques used to assess the quality of information. In the physical sciences, a replicable experiment is always valued. A number of repeated readings which can be averaged, or a set of results which can be graphed, have more value than a single result. In a court of law, the testimony of witnesses is valued in corroborating statements. Several independent witnesses are better than one. In a repeated experiment, if nine results agree, and one is different, the 'odd man out' is likely to be regarded as false. Another approach is to match information received with other information which is already in our possession. The statement $X=3$, may or may not be true. But if we already know that $X+Y=7$ and $Y=4$, we are able to prove that $X=3$ is true.

Suppose a message is received through a medium, "Look in the wardrobe". Person A receiving this message looks in the back of the wardrobe and finds a coathanger. Person B receiving the same message, also checks the wardrobe and finds a coat, and in the pocket is a legal document which B has been looking for. The matching information is likely to impress B far more than A. The quality of the message is judged by the relevance of the date. What is the nature of the information coming through a medium that is allowed by the communication channel? Your views please to the Editorial address.

PSYCHIC RESEARCH

FOREWARD.

I think firstly I've got a bit of explaining to do. It was somewhat premature of me to state in our last issue that music was coming from a child's push button guitar whilst no one was near it, and when there were no batteries in it. Now, that "was" the case as we went to print with our last issue, but not long afterwards we learned otherwise, as a new explanation surfaced. But let's start at the beginning.

HOW IT STARTED.

Dealing with the paranormal, I usually find myself researching all sorts of strange cases, none of which however, were anything like the case that SPI were recently working on. It sure was a weird one. It all started when I received a telephone call from one Catrina McNab, a Spiritualist medium from the town of Plean in Stirlingshire. Catrina has worked with SPI before, in particular, the Tollbooth ghost case, in which the American TV show "Sightings" came to Scotland to film SPI regarding the case. Catrina explained to me that she knew of a family who lived near Stirling, (family request anonymity) who were claiming that a small child's electronic keyboard type guitar, 16 inches in length, was playing "itself" in their home without any batteries in it. It played the nursery rhyme, "Polly-Wolly-Doodle". Not only that, but it played at 1am in the morning, every morning without fail! Catrina suggested to me that we best act quickly lest the phenomenon should die away. So a date was arranged to visit the family in question.

CATRINA McNAB.

THE EVENTS.

Catrina and I arrived at the home, the bottom flat in a block of flats, where I then set about interviewing the mother, son, and family friend. The mother related these following facts....(A) She bought the guitar in a second hand shop in Stirling for her grandson Robert (5) to play with when he came to visit. (B) The family moved into the house in March this year, but it was only in June, when the mother had bought the guitar, that the events began to occur. (C) The first occasion that the guitar played, was when the mother was having a snooze on the livingroom settee, (all family members were out) when at 1am, she heard through her snooze, the tune Polly-Wolly-Doodle. She crawled over to the source of this music, (the guitar that she had bought), and switched it off, having at this point been wakened from her sleep. She then realised that in fact she had not switched the guitar off, but had switched it on, and then the realisation hit her, that the guitar did not contain any batteries within it to make the music in the first place. (The guitar can also be pre-programmed to play 14 selected nursery rhyme tunes.

(D) The following morning, again at 1am, the guitar played again, the same tune was heard, and again there were no batteries within the guitar. A family friend Jane Gilbert (23) also heard the music, she too said that it came from the guitar. A few nights later, John Davie (21) son, was lying stretched across the settee having a snooze, when he heard the now familiar sound of Polly-Wolly-Doodle. Then John felt extremely cold, seconds later, he felt extremely hot. He then heard a small child's voice say "are you scared?" He then felt his ankles being lifted up by a small child like grip

He was then swung around on the settee, (his bottom being turned 90 degrees) in which he then found himself facing the livingroom wall. He was then led by the hand out of the livingroom but felt the grip release, and he was alone again in the room. Very frightened, he shouted for his mother and proceeded to tell her all about his experience.

VISION OR DREAM ?

THE SPIRIT CHILD
AS DRAWN BY CATRINA
McNAB PSYCHIC
AND ACCEPTED AS VISUALLY CORRECT
BY MARGARET THE MOTHER.

The following night after the guitar had played again, the puzzled mother (Margaret Davie) sat quietly in her chair in the livingroom (all other family members had went to bed) closed her eyes, and in a relaxed state of mind asked out loud, ... "Who are you" ? Suddenly a picture evolved in her mind, just like a mini TV screen she told me, in which she saw this small girl, aged between 6 or 7 years, sat upon some cobbled stones idly chalking over the top of them. She described her as wearing an old type pinofore dress, (something akin to the female children featured in the American TV programme Little House On The Prairie). She had dark hair, of which tight ringlets were a main feature, and a small elflike face. She also wore black buttoned up boots. Margaret then asked the child.... "what's your name" ? and the child looked up and said... "Emily Woods". Margaret then asked, ... "Where did you come from" ? To which the child replied... "Carronsshore" (Carronsshore is a small town on the outskirts of Falkirk, a good few miles away from the location in question.

Margaret then asked the child, ... "How did you die" ? Immediately after asking this question, she saw the child engulfed in smoke. Lots of smoke was billowing around her, no flames could be seen, just smoke. Now it is fair to say at this point that Margaret is unsure if she slipped into a dream state, or if this vision actually occurred. All she does know, is that this vision was "very clear" and she did receive these answers.

The guitar, the family claimed, continued to play every morning at 1am, (no matter where they put it !) They even put it in a cellar and it played there ! This then was the testimony from the family. And, as I've said, it was confirmed when family and friends also heard the music. So, having conducted our interviews, we then sat with baited breath to see if the guitar would play for us. I've been a researcher for around 15 years now, and although I've seen what I believe to have been UFOs, I've never seen anything which could be termed spiritual, (well apart from table tilting). So to be honest readers, I was sitting in this woman's living room staring at the guitar propped up against the wall, not expecting anything at all to happen. So at five minutes to one I asked for total silence, and pressed record on my audio tape.

EMILY'S FACE AS DRAWN BY CATRINA.

At exactly 1am, the first notes of Polly-Wolly-Doodle started to play. Well, I almost crapped myself, shivers raced up and down my spine, sheer disbelief crept over me, as I knew full well that some minutes before I had inspected the guitar, and sure enough there were no batteries contained within it, (or hidden micro tapes). The tune lasted for around nine seconds, whereupon total silence ensued. Margaret asked me if I was alright, it took me a few moments to reply. Thankfully I had the composure as the tune was playing, to take a quick photograph of the guitar in the hope that perhaps some "extra image" might come up on the photograph, (it did not). Wow, I had heard it, was it real ? was the tune in my mind or what ? Was this a practical joke ? Surely not as the family did not want any outsiders to know about it, (especially the press). They wanted a quiet life, not to be hounded by sight-seers peeking through their living room window. They wanted an answer, a pure and simple answer, and it was up to SPI to hopefully provide one. We knew we had a case on !

THE INVESTIGATION BEGINS.

Something like this requires a lot of thought, more so than you would imagine. There just had to be a logical explanation to account for all this, and I just had to think of all the possibilities. Catrina McNab had suggested bringing in someone from the media, someone who could be trusted enough to promise not to divulge the family's names or where they lived, and would be there, purely and simply to observe and see if they too could hear the music, (a media personality "may" give it more credence !). I spoke to Margaret the mother about this, and stated that I knew someone, Mark Connelly of BBC Radio Scotland who could be trusted, (I had worked with Mark compiling a story on the Bonnybridge UFO sightings earlier in the year). Margaret said that she would only agree to Mark becoming involved, if he promised not to reveal the family. I placed a call to Mark, and he gave me his assurance that he would not reveal who the family were or where they lived.

The next step was to bring in an electronic expert to check over this guitar. This was Tom Moir, a senior lecturer and electrical engineer at Paisley University. A date was then arranged to visit the family. We arrived at the family home where Mark Connelly of BBC Scotland, gave his total assurance to Margaret that he wouldn't disclose who they were but he was here in the capacity of doing a story for the Eddy Mair BBC Scotland Show. Tom Moir the electronic expert, proceeded to take the back off the guitar. After carefully checking it over, he assured us all, that as far as he could see, he detected no signs of hidden microphones or timer activated switches. In short, nothing was amiss, everything was as it should be. And with that, he carefully put the guitar back together again.

The room was full with family and friends, and true to form, at I am precisely, the tune played. Surprisingly though, the only persons who did not hear the tune, were Tom Moir, Mark Connelly, and Catrina McNab's boyfriend. Nevertheless, Mark Connelly did accept the fact that something strange was going on in the home, and recorded Interviews with myself, Catrina, and family members. He kept his word and the family were not identified. The programme was presented fairly. I should state here that on this occasion, whilst I heard the tune, it was very faint !

THE NEXT LOGICAL STEP.

As I had now heard this tune twice, I decided that the next logical step would be to take the guitar out of the home environment to see if it would play somewhere else. Before I took the guitar from the home however, I received a telephone call from the mother, stating that the tune had stopped playing at I am, and was now playing at 12.00am (MMmm). Prior to taking the guitar out of the home, Tom Moir and I revisited the family but missed hearing the tune play at 12.00am by minutes. Anyway on that night I took the guitar from the home, (the family were in full agreement). The following night I set up my audio recorder and waited with baited breath to see if the guitar would play in my house. 12.00am came and went, nothing had happened. About a minute after twelve my phone rang, it was Jim Davie (26) one of the two sons, who was very excited and was shouting over the phone, .."It's played..It's played". Now I had the guitar, but the tune still played in their home (MMmm). Clearly something was amiss ! It was becoming clear that the guitar was "not" the source of the music, it must be coming from somewhere else within the family home, but where !!

HELEN'S INVOLVEMENT.

Catrina McNab had been very helpfull in obtaining psychic information about this spirit child, she also confirmed many details of the child that the mother had herself found out. However, the mother felt it necessary to involve another psychic to see in another psychic could confirm these details, or indeed provide more. That psychic was Helen Walters, SPI's main psychic medium consultant, and a regular attendee on SPI Investigations. I again visited the home, this time with Helen Walters in which nothing was mentioned to her about what was going on in the home, an important fact as far as I could see. It was on this night that we discovered the source of where the sound of the nursery rhyme was coming. We uncovered the fact that the sound was coming from a walk in cupboard in the hall area, we both heard the sound very clear.

The cupboard was full of boxes containing kids books-toys-cars-etc. We took some items out of the cupboard, and could not on this occasion, find any cause (item) to account for the music. Helen psychically picked up some information on this night, which I should state, did not really match what Catrina McNab had found out. However, Helen "did" pick up the spirit of a young girl. What was alarming on this night however, was when Helen was standing in the cupboard and was violently through backwards out of the cupboard and crashed into a wall on the opposite side. Helen explained that it wasn't the young child that did this, but a tall dark figure standing beside the girl who didn't want Helen to interfere. She couldn't discern whether this figure was male or female. This happened a few times more, but I ensured that I was in a position to catch her.

HELEN WALTERS.

Helen also saw five balls of red light move about head high along the hall, and head in the direction of the mother's bedroom. So we now had found the area in which this music came from, (although I must state here the fact that the family are still adamant that the music came from the guitar, and did not come from anywhere else !!) This case was certainly proving more and more interesting, and we explained to the family that in the immortal words of Arnold Schwarzenegger, "we would be back".

GMTV'S INVOLVEMENT.

Now during this break between visits, the mother explained to me over the phone, that on certain occasions she felt a small hand being inserted into her own. She also felt the small spirit child's hand on her wrist, (as did other members of her family). A family friend, Jane Gilbert (23) felt her hair being stroked when nobody was near her. A few days later, I received a telephone call from GMTV, a breakfast television station based in London. I was asked if I had any ongoing cases at the moment, to which I gave a very brief outline of this case. GMTV were most interested in this case, and asked if they could travel up to Scotland and film our ongoing investigation. I replied that the family requested anonymity and it would be up to the family in question if they wished to be a part of this. Not only that though, this investigation was by no means complete. The upshot was, the family agreed, but only on the assurance that they would not be identified. Sue Woodfield of GMTV gave this assurance. Arrangements were made and programme researcher Sue Woodfield, accompanied by a sound recordist and camera man, joined Tom Moir, Helen Walters, and myself at the family home.

Interviews were conducted on Tom, Helen, and myself, as continuous cups of tea made their way around the home. GMTV did not film the mother, she did however speak of the events on audio tape. Son Jim was filmed with his footwear obscuring his face.

POLLY-WOLLY-DOODLE UNCOVERED !

On completion of the interviews, our next step was to be filmed as we emptied the contents of the hall cupboard, it was quite a task I can tell you. The object here was to see if we could find any object/item which might be the root cause behind the music. It was during the course of the emptying of this cupboard, that electronic expert Tom Moir, came across a small Orac hand held computer games machine which he kept separate from the rest of the items. Having cleared the cupboard, I checked for loose floorboards, hidden panels etc, to see if something had been secreted in the cupboard perhaps by a previous tenant, everything was as it should be. The minutes ticked on, it was now five minutes to twelve. Our medium Helen Walters was now standing alone in the empty cupboard. Silence was everywhere, as all eyes fell on Helen Walters. GMTV's camera was the only movement in the hall area as it turned to capture Tom and I as we stood transfixed looking at the hall cupboard. The seconds ticked away, it was now one minute to twelve, would the tune play I asked myself ?

Suddenly the silence was pierced by the sound of Polly-Wolly-Doodle, delight turned to dismay as we looked towards the source of the music, it was coming from the hand held Orac games machine which Tom Moir was holding in his hands. I felt as if someone had punched me in the stomach as the realisation that months of this continuous tune being played was not coming from the guitar as stated by the family, but from this simple games machine. ...But wait...it suddenly dawned on me that this spirit child of which both mediums had confirmed, could well have been using this device to sound off in order to make her presence known to the family. Some would say that this is stretching the bounds of credulity, but I would ask the reader to cast their mind back to old Victorian England and the Spiritualist seances of that era.

For if we remember, what we saw there was, tambourines rise into the air with no one holding them and rattling away. Small concertinas would also rise up into the air and play away, again, with no human agency behind them. Spirit was using these musical Instruments as a means of communication with the sitters, letting them know of their presence. OK, I agree that this explanation may not meet with the approval of some readers, but I would ask readers not to be too hasty in dismissing this explanation. I do honestly feel that this spirit child was behind this, and that she was using this to continually make the family aware, that she was around. I should also mention the fact that, on "every" occasion just prior to the music being played, Margaret the mother, had the sensation of her head feeling very heavy, which lifted seconds after the music had played.

THE SPIRIT CHILD MOVES ON. !

Seconds after the music had played, Helen Walters began to receive psychic impressions from the spirit girl, she also sensed the larger dark shaped figure standing next to the girl, Helen could not discern who this figure was or if it was male or female. Some minutes later, as the film crew and family members stood listening to every word that Helen was saying, a dramatic event occurred. For as on our last visit, Helen was violently thrown out of the cupboard, and with a resounding "crack", banged her head with some force on the wall opposite the cupboard. We all quickly rushed to her aid, and although badly shaken, she was basically OK. She brushed herself down, and returned to the cupboard. I'll say this for Helen, she sure has guts ! Unfortunately for Helen, she was again thrown out of the cupboard, only this time, we were in a position to catch her. Helen informed us that the spirit child was still reluctant to leave the home. At this point we decided to have a short break as the events had been most unnerving to some of us ! During our break, Sue Woodfield of GMTV explained to me that they now had enough film and would shortly be leaving. As GMTV packed up, I had been observing the mother and could see that she was quite uneasy about all that was going on around her, and to some degree I felt that it was all my fault. Her house had been disrupted, turned upside down, and various people had trooped through her home hoping to see a ghost ! I took her aside and explained how sorry I was for all the inconvenience and it could all stop if she wanted to get rid of the spirit child this night. And if we did, and we were successful, then there would be no need for us to return. After a small pause Margaret said, "Yes Malcolm, I would like you to move this spirit child on". I should also state here the fact that, never at any time was the family alarmed by this spirit child, it never frightened them. They were aware of its presence but it never was malevolent. None the less, the mother did state that it would be in the best interest if we did move this spirit child on. I explained this to our medium Helen Walters, and she agreed that she would try and move the child on.

And so I returned to the cupboard with Helen and Margaret's son Jim. Helen stood in the middle, I stood at her back, and Jim stood at her front. Jim and I held hands forming a protective circle around Helen. Helen then "tuned in" to spirit, and proceeded to say out loud, a prayer of which we hoped would make the spirit child realise that it was futile for her to hang around the Earth plane, and that there would be a place for her towards the light. Silence followed Helen's prayer, and uneasiness followed. Would I be struck I thought to myself, would I see something ? what would happen next ?

Several minutes later, Helen again spoke, only this time saying, .."She's going now, she's moving on. She's giving me a wee smile, a wee nod of her head, and she is being led away...she understands". It was over. I breathed a sigh of relief, as did Jim as his sweaty hands released from mine. We then went into the living room and explained to Margaret and others what had taken place. Margaret was glad, though in a way she was also sad too. For she had in a way, struck up a bond with the spirit child but even so, she knew deep down that she shouldn't be here, and now thankfully she was with someone, and in a better place. SPI said goodbye to the family and asked them to let us know if the spirit child returned, and as of this time of writing, late October everything is still quiet and peaceful.

MY APPEARANCE ON GMTV.

A few weeks later, Sue Woodfield of GMTV rang me and invited me down to London to the Television Studios to talk live about this case with presenter Eamonn Holmes and Lorraine Kelly. I was flown down from Glasgow, put up at a posh hotel, and driven to the studios where I did two live spots of which they also ran the video that they took at Margaret's home. And true to her word, Sue did not disclose the town in question, nor the familys names. So this was quite an unusual case for SPI, and I would like to thank all those who assisted. In closing I'll now feature Tom Moir's report on the case.

POLLY-WOLLY-DOODLE, BY TOM MOIR.

I was called into this case by Malcolm Robinson to investigate the strange case of a 'Keystar' electronic keyboard/guitar playing a tune when the batteries were not in place. I was present at the house on three occasions. FIRST OCCASION. On the first occasion, we waited till I am with microphones placed next to the Keystar. A BBC Radio Scotland reporter was present, as were most of the family. When the time came I heard absolutely nothing. The tape recorders, mine and the BBC, registered no sound. However with the exception of myself and the BBC reporter and another person, the noise was heard and was very faint. I opened up the Keystar to see if it had been tampered with in any way and found no evidence for this. In my opinion, the sound, (if there was one), could not have been coming from the Keystar. I was assured by the family that the tune Polly-Wolly-Doodle had been on the Keystar, but was now somehow missing. Had the ghost stolen the tune? SECOND OCCASION. On the eve of the second trip, the Keystar played its tune at twelve midnight, somehow the time had changed. When I arrived the next evening we were too late. We then thought that a good plan was to move the Keystar from the house altogether, and see if the sound was still heard. I thought that the Keystar was a red herring. I also left a microphone with the family to record the tune. The following evenings the tune was recorded, and later by Malcolm himself. The source of the sound was traced to a cupboard in the hall. THIRD OCCASION. A night which legends are made of! The Television Company GMTV were present, and we were desperate for a conclusion to me met, for the family's sake at least. On hearing the recordings, I was sure they were identical. The tune had to come from a Melody Generator Integrated Circuit. Similar kinds are found in Greeting Cards, Toys, Watches, etc. They are made by a company in Taiwan called United Microelectronics. Similar circuits are made in other parts of the Far East, for example, mainland China. The only problem was that the sound from my own melody generator which I obtained off a birthday card had too much treble and not enough power to the sound as compared with the recordings.

The second puzzling thing, was that the time changed from Iam to Midnight, and the volume changed. Sometimes it was loud, and sometimes it was nearly inaudible. A possible explanation is that the batteries could be low. This sometimes happens with digital watches. I also purchased, a few days earlier, a Mark II Keystar from Argus. I contacted the manufacturer and asked about the original Keystar and its Melody Book, (The set tunes that it plays). I was informed that Polly-Wolly-Doodle, has never been used, or will be used, The family therefore was mistaken. The sound had to be coming from the cupboard. In the event, we dramatically captured the sound on the night. Right on cue, it played from a hand held (Chinese) games machine which I was holding. I was gobsmacked, (since I thought the sound would not happen), but at the same time was quite pleased that the case had been resolved. After examining the device the next day, I could set its clock and alarm, and replicate the problem in the house. Part of the problem is that the device plays a different tune most of the time, and only Polly Wolly-Doodle, when the alarm goes off. An occasional user might not have noticed or even remembered the tune.

A few things still puzzle me: (1) The time change by one hour, possibly a battery problem, but on the night it sounded really loud. Battery type AA. (2) Why the change of volume? Again a battery problem? The heat in the cupboard could give a modest re-charge, but I am far from convinced. Another possibility is that the battery was a bit loose. This leads to the possibility that either a hoaxer knew about it all the time, "or, something even stranger"! I would conclude that the source of the melody was from the device in the cupboard, not the Keystar, and that probably the young nephew had been playing with it near the time of the first incident. We may never know the full story, but it certainly gave me a night I will always remember as long as I live. The events with Helen the medium, on the final occasion, were quite alarming at the time, (the whole room shook as she hit the wall partition), and make me wonder at this world in which we live and the mysteries which it holds.....TOM MOIR....

CONCLUDING REMARKS.

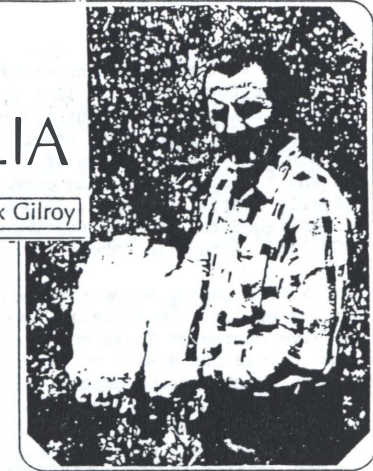

As we can see from Tom's report, we differ in the interpretation of how and why the music played. The family still maintain that without doubt the music distinctly came from the guitar! However we did uncover the fact that the music was coming from the Orac games machine, and it is my considered opinion, that the spirit child was using this device, (I don't know how!) to make her presence known. Let us not forget too, of the instances of which this spirit girl touched family members, and, that two Independent psychic mediums confirmed her presence in the home. A happy ending was the result, and ENIGMAS aim to feature Helen Walters account in our next issue.

MAN - APES OF EASTERN AUSTRALIA

Part II

by Rex Gilroy

REX GILROY HOLDS A PLASTER CAST OF YOWIE FOOTPRINTS. (c) Nexus.

Farmers around Kempsey on the NSW North Coast, especially in the foothills of the vast impenetrable Carrai Range west of town, frequently carry rifles with them while checking stock in remote areas. They recall only too well incidents that have occurred thereabouts over the years, of hairy manbeasts that have strayed from their mountain lairs onto remote farming properties. The story is still recalled how in 1965, a husband and wife left their remote foothills farm one morning to shop in Kempsey. Their 15 year old daughter was left behind alone to do the housework. She had tidied up about the house, and was in the back yard feeding chickens when the family dog, chained up near the house, began barking furiously. Then cringing, crawled inside its kennel.

The girl, suddenly aware that something was behind her, turned, dropped the bag of chicken feed she had been holding, and screamed in terror. There, standing several metres from her, and towering over her frail 1.8m height, was an enormous hairy man-like beast a good 2.6m tall, and showing a ferocious look in its eyes, which she later recalled were set deep inside big eyebrows. Large teeth showed from its snarling mouth and it had an overpowering odour. The manbeast moved towards her, but the terrified girl rushed up the back door steps into the house, slamming and bolting the door as she did so.

For some minutes she later recalled the beast paced around the house emitting a loud grunting sound, then all went silent. She was beside herself with terror when her parents returned a couple of hours later, and although she could describe exactly what she had seen to them, and later to police, nobody in authority took any action. No search was organised to attempt to track the mysterious intruder due to the vastness of the nearby wilderness. The above story is typical of many, often quite believable accounts I receive and follow up. But sightings reports are only as good as the people who claim to have experienced them, and are not physical proof. However, like the best of the plaster casts and photographs of possible Yowie tracks found in the wild, they are good circumstantial evidence upon which to build a case for these creatures existence. But, if the Yowie exists, why hasn't one been captured by now? Or why hasn't someone found any bones or a recently deceased carcass?

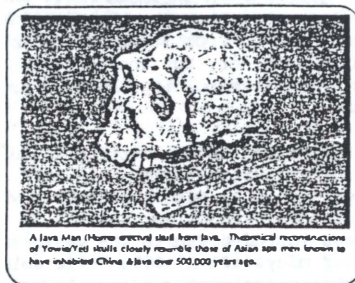

The answer is simple. The Yowies habitat covers vast tracts of inaccessible forest covered mountain territory forming the Eastern Australian mountain ranges. Country so inaccessible that any rare or "unknown" species could very easily escape human detection for centuries. Under these circumstances, capturing a Yowie would be virtually impossible, let alone attempting to photograph one. As for finding recently deceased remains or bones, mother nature keeps a clean house. No sooner does an animal die in the wild than its tissue is quickly eaten up by other animals, decomposition and acidic chemicals in the forest soil. Bones become scattered, softened by moisture, and cracked by heat, so that soon nothing remains. Everyone has seen Koalas in zoos, but how many have ever found one dead in the wild? The Australian bush is so vast that it is a case of being in the right place at the right time to find any recently deceased animal or its skeleton. The rarer the species, the less chance of finding remains. So finding physical evidence of the Yowie will be very difficult, considering the habitat in which they live. On the other hand, fossil remains of a Yowie could yet turn up to finally settle the issue. It was for the purpose of gathering such evidence that I established the "Australian Unknown Animals Research Centre" (PO Box 473 Kootingal NSW 2352, Australia, where I welcome any information helpful to my Investigations.

Not a week passes without someone mailing or phoning me with a reported sighting to follow up, or, occasionally, mystery footprints to inspect in some remote area. I often receive photos of Yowie type tracks, and, sometimes actual plaster casts. While many cast tracks can easily be dismissed as the work of hoaxers, there are a few identical tracks which possess anatomical features unique to primate type creatures of which laymen are ignorant, found hundreds of kilometres apart. This was the case with a single cast at least twice the size of a normal human foot, displaying an opposable big toe, found on a lonely 4 wheel drive track deep in the Kanangra Boyd National Park, high up in the Jenolan Range, south west of Katoomba NSW in 1987.

It compares favourably with a number of giant sized footprints found by campers in the Numinbah Valley, below the imposing Lamington Plateau on the Qld/NSW border in 1970. These tracks found embedded in creek mud, measured 45cm in length, by 20cm wide across the toes. Much later, in March 1990, businessman Craig Turner, en route to Sydney, stopped his car by a Numinbah Valley Creek. Walking along the bank he found several large footprints embedded up to 4cm deep in mud. Spaced 1.5m apart, the footprints measured 40cm in length by 17cm wide. After obtaining plaster from a nearby town, he made casts of left and right feet, which he later gave me.

Recently, an identical right foot cast of the same measurements came to me from the Kiandra district in the Snowy Mountains. Identical tracks from such widely distributed localities, are a persuasive argument for the existence of the Yowie. Like Asian and American "manbeast" footprints, those of the Yowie have flat arches, with abnormally wide heels. The toes are short, and the forefoot less tapered than the human foot.

With a knowledge of primate foot skeletal structure and musculature, fake tracks are easily detected. When a fake foot rises, it kicks up a little mound of dirt behind the toes in the footprint. Shoes, or a bare foot kick up a mound of dirt back toward the middle of the foot. From all the foregoing evidence, it is obvious that the Yowie Yeti/Bigfoot stand somewhere between man and ape, a feature of most descriptions given by people who have come face to face with one of these creatures. And here are some of the modern day reports of people who have had the "encounter of a lifetime".

The Snowy Mountains has produced many encounters. My research findings show many of these reports occur about June, following the first winter snowfall, when the animal life of the high country migrates into the lower regions. It is at this time that sightings of manbeasts, or foot print discoveries, often on snow covered ground, are most prevalent. During June 1970, at Geehi, northwest of Mt Kosciuszko, two mountaineers, Ron Bartlett and Frank Sinclair, were camped on the edge of a stand of mountainside trees. Overnight a light snowfall had occurred. At daybreak they were preparing to abandon camp when Frank noticed some large, manlike tracks embedded in nearby snow. Both had heard tales of the giant hairy "Doolagahls" said to inhabit the mountain country, but had taken little notice of these "bushmen's tales", until they saw these tracks. The men also detected a strange odour and had the distinct feeling that they were not alone. Cautiously, they began working their way down the mountainside scrub. Suddenly, ahead they spotted a 2.6m tall, dark hairy man like figure staring at them. It then vanished into the dense scrub.

THE IMPORTANCE OF THE VIDEO CAMERA BY Malcolm Robinson.

As a researcher into the paranormal, my main priority, (having accepted Life After Death as fact), is to show the public when the opportunity arises, that psychic phenomena is most certainly worthy of serious scientific enquiry. What saddens me is the fact that, there ain't a lot of scientists who wish to tread the waters of psychic research, perhaps through fear of their fellow colleagues criticism. Not I'm not a scientist by any means, but having acquainted myself with Spiritualism and Near Death Experiences, I find myself in the position to at least have a reasonable appraisal of these subjects. I question everything, and do not go into research with pre-conceived ideas and fanciful impressions.

Over the years I've asked myself the question, "but what constitutes good solid proof"? "what would Joe Public accept as factual coming from the realms of spirit, UFOs, N.D.E's etc. In this day and age of technological marvels and amazing computer science and photographic "touch up", It's so easy to make something other than what it seems! The photographers air brush can take things out of a photograph, whereby giving a false impression on what actually should have been there. I feel that, the famous 1972 "Nessie" flipper photograph, which shows a clear and detailed diamond shaped flipper, may, and I underline may, be the result of someone re-touching the photograph/negative, sharpening up the edges to make it look something other than it was. Now that is only speculation on my part, but my point is simple, what kind of proof would convince the sceptics?

Would it be the movement of heavy objects in front of them with no visible means of support, say during a poltergeist outbreak, would that convince a watching sceptic? I'm sure the reader has his/her own ideas as to what kind of evidence would convince the sceptic. Of course this is coming from the premise that one accepts Spiritualism and Life After Death as being a fact, which I most certainly do. Man's perseverance to his fellow man, has throughout the centuries never abated, his quest and thirst for knowledge knows no bounds. Marconi, John Logi Baird, The Wright Bros, all pioneers in their own field, were up against critics and sheer blinkered ignorisim from their fellow men, who felt that what they were trying to convey or achieve, could not be. We researchers are to a lesser degree, in the same boat. I've always said that human knowledge depends upon asking questions, and if mankind ceases to ask questions, then we will forever find ourselves stuck in primary one.

But getting back to my theme of providing evidence to the sceptics. What can we do? Well firstly we must applaud the Noah's Ark Society, (NAS) for the sterling work that they are currently carrying out. They are going back to grass roots Spiritualism, that of proving, through the seance room, of not only transfiguration, (the medium's face taking on the features of his/her spirit guide), but apports, levitation of objects tables etc, spirit lights. Voice communication from the luminous trumpet of people who once lived, but most importantly, the psychic build up, "materialisation" of people who once walked this earth, which I might add has occurred many times before.

The NAS are encouraging psychics, and Joe Public, to sit in and play a major role in bringing forth these effects throughout many different circles in the U.K. and, having read the NAS Newsletter, it would appear that many encouraging results have been achieved. This is all well and good, but as a researcher, I would strongly encourage the use of video cameras and still cameras to enter the seance room and film such effects occurring, particularly the capture on video, of a once living human being who has passed to the higher side of life.

To obtain film of such a person, would, I'm sure, go a long way towards proving the Spiritualists cause which is, "There Is No Death". Sure there would be those who would say that it must surely be a con, or it's someones twin brother. However, in the face of such impressive evidence, (and once we had proved that it wasn't someones twin brother or hidden extra, then I'm sure that many people would come round to accepting the fact that "There Is No Death"). The beginnings of this, should, as I've said, come through undeniable video evidence taken by someone scientific or someone in local authority whom the public accept and trust. Strict conditions should apply which everyone is happy with even the possibility of having the BBC or ITV, should not be ruled out.

I know through past history, that as soon as you bring "test conditions" into a seance room or specialised equipment, nothing much happens, the phenomenon seems to disappear. However, we must keep trying. So SPI say, Get the video cameras in to the seance room "NOW". SPI and many others want undeniable proof, and I would say to the NAS and others, "GO FOR IT" Now where would this evidence take us? Well I have my own thoughts on this, but do you have yours? LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

ENIGMAS

DEAR EDITOR.

Since you describe your organisation as Strange Phenomena Investigations, I would automatically expect an attitude of open minded objectivity, tempered with common sense, and an appropriate degree of logic, this is present in some reports, less so in others, and in at least one case, totally absent! (Editor's Note, the writer is referring here to a previous issue of ENIGMAS).

I find the increasing use of hypnotic regression to provide 'evidence' for various bizarre theories worrying, as it is (or should be) becoming increasingly clear, that the 'hidden memories' of whatever theory the hypnotist wishes to demonstrate, are surprisingly easy to find in a very large proportion of humanity, even though the events described often support theories which are both incredible and mutually exclusive!

I have even less time for 'channelled' material since it is usually impossible to prove or disprove, and almost always displays a woeful lack of profundity or even imagination! Finally, there is an article here by one John Holman who is apparently working on the assumption that all evidence that 'Space Brothers' are our friends should be swallowed uncritically, whereas all evidence to the contrary should be somehow shown to be a reflection of the imperfect nature of humanity!

When this sort of argument was used by medieval theologians to try to get round the paradox that a totally benevolent and omnipotent God allowed the world to contain a lot of horrible things, it sometimes assumed an air of grand desperation; when used in the late 20th century, to demonstrate why certain rather hypothetical space beings are apparently visiting our planet with the simultaneous purposes of helping humanity evolve into a wonderful enlightened race despite itself, and playing a particularly perverse game of "doctors & nurses". This sort of reasoning, (if it can be called that), is nearly pathetic.

Well, you asked what your readers thought! Please, a little more objectivity on this sort of thing. (Editor's Note. I was quite happy with John Holman's article, as it was an independant expression of his belief, which, as we can see, stirred up some debate).

Finally, I noticed a distinct lack of crop circle related material. "Good", I am sick to death of them, and it continues to amaze me, that there are still people on this planet who still take the whole farrage seriously; and anyway, the bloody things have several magazines entirely devoted to them.

DEAR EDITOR.

I have read many books and articles on the subjects of, strange phenomena as well as watching various thought provoking films and documentaries. From the information I have understood and the tell tale films and documentaries I have seen, I've come to the conclusion that higher levels of intelligence actually exist. Let's face it, who else could be responsible for the massive technological jump start we have received in such a short space of time? With the helping hand of higher intelligences, we have quite literally progressed from abacuss to megabyte computers in a space of decades.

Is this helping hand from our universal neighbours beneficial for mankind, or are we victims of interplanetary exploitation or both, who knows? I have a whole host of questions I would like answering. These days peoples wareness have changed, you can only fool a few of the people some of the time.

I do believe the answers to a lot of our questions about life, why are we here? What purpose do we really serve? They will be answered soon. The cat is almost out of the bag, and the real truth, if mankind accepts it, will either destroy us, or it will change the way we live forever.

B. WALLER, HARTLEPOOL, ENGLAND.

DEAR EDITOR.

The province of Manitoba experienced a wave of UFO activity in the months of May and June. One ongoing investigation reported to our institute involves two witnesses to a possible Canadian Air Force Interception of a UFO. We are attempting to illicit "official" documentation responses, as well as looking for further witnesses. We also received long distance calls from Southern Ontario in the month of June regarding what appeared to be a very active several days of UFO activity. Further enquiries produced several cases of abductions, "After The Wave Diminished". In one case, a lady reported seeing a light of "great intensity" from her bathroom window, followed by a two hour period of missing time. This coincided with abduction activity in New Brunswick (East Coast).

Investigators in my home town of Saint John, reported an increase in abduction activity during the month of June of 80 per cent, compared to other months over the last year. This figure is based on a very poor public information networking system. August appears to have brought us an erratic succession of reports from northern Nova Scotia regarding "platforms" and rectangular objects. Let's see the Government try and duplicate this technology.

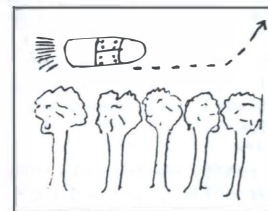

In one case, Ling Kao, fifty, retrieved a piece of metallic rock which was burning and glowing a coal red while an object was hovering over the beach where she was standing at 10.30 in the evening. Although the rock was red, it was cold to the touch when picked up by the witness. The other pebbles and rocks appeared normal, but a control sample was included. We are having it analysed by a University.

LORNE GOLDFADER, VANCOUVER, CANADA.

DEAR EDITOR,

It was September 1976 about 11pm. Some friends and I were parked on Camberly Common in Surrey drinking beer in the car. I was sitting in the front passenger side. While the driver was turned talking to the two back seat passengers. I was staring out of the window listening to the conversation. Suddenly, there appeared this object moving very slowly along the tops of about five or six trees planted in a row. It was shaped like a bomb with a tail of fire. I could even see the joins and bolts.

When it reached the last tree it turned left and pointed towards the sky. Within a blink of an eye it was gone. The flames went out and it picked up speed so quickly I didn't see it go, and there wasn't any sound, it was deadly silent. We were parked about 100/150 metres away, and I must have watched it for about twenty to twenty five seconds before it disappeared. The others saw or heard nothing.

About a year later I left my friends house at 10pm. It was a beautiful night. I spent a minute or two just looking up at all the stars. I started the 15-20 minute walk along Park Road Camberly thinking about the evening events. Suddenly I felt as if I was being watched, and instantly looked behind me, but then I realised that it was coming from above, I looked up and noticed this bright star, and wondered how I hadn't noticed it earlier, as it was so much bigger and brighter than the rest, I then thought that I was being asked, "Did I want to go with them"? I remember reading in magazines of people claiming to have been living with aliens on their planet. These people were being called freaks in these stories. Not wanting to be labelled a freak, I decided that I wanted to stay here.

I looked up to give my answer, but the bright star had gone, leaving me wondering if the whole thing had been my imagination. Even so, it frightened me enough to run the rest of the way home, "just in case they changed their minds and came back to take me away!"

CEIV ON T.V. Well at long last Scottish rock group CE IV got the Television break that they so long deserved. Glasgow group CE IV were featured on the childrens T.V. programme F.O.T. (False Or True) a few months back, in which we saw them performing their hit number M.I.B. Man from their successful audio cassette album "ABDUCTION". SPI hope that this will be the start of many T.V. appearances for the group who write and perform songs centered around the UFO phenomena. Well done to Brian McMullen (Snr), Brian McMullen (Jnr), and Andy Morton. Further information about CE IV may be obtained by writing to, CE IV, 81 Ryeside Road, Barmulloch, Glasgow, Scotland. DOES ANYBODY CARE.?

BY Malcolm Robinson.

You know, some of us researchers walk a tightrope, and I'll tell you why. Not long after my recent appearance on G.M.T.V. I received a letter from a gentleman, of whom I won't disclose his name, but we'll call him Frank. Now in his letter to me, Frank stated that for some weeks he had been subject to malevolent forces at work in his home. Frank is 42 years of age, and is disabled. In his letters and phone calls he relates that he has witnessed strange black shapes in his home of which have been terrorising him. He reckons there are at least ten spirits in his home which don't give him a minutes peace. It was clear from Frank's letters and phone calls that he was extremely frightened and looked to me to hopefully relieve him from his terrifying predicament.

Anyway, it was very clear that this chap required assistance, he really needed help. But due to the distance involved, (Frank lives in Ellesmere Port Liverpool), I decided that the best option for Frank, as I couldn't travel down due to work commitments, was to get in touch with the Society For Psychical Research. I spoke on the phone with a lady who informed me that they were most reluctant to deal with cases such as this, as nine out of ten cases usually turn out the fact that the individual concerned doesn't really require an exorcist as such, but a consultation with his or her local doctor. Now to a point I accept this, for there are on record, a number of cases in which individuals complained of paranormal effects/possession, when in fact it was later ascertained, that really it was a doctor they needed all along. So it's a very fine line we tread here. I had no luck with the S.P.R !

My next step was to phone the College Of Psychic Studies, this I did, and I was basically told the same thing there, "that they couldn't help, and that the chap should see a doctor" ! "Well fine if he really does require a doctor, but what if he doesn't ! I then spoke on the phone with a very well known paranormal researcher, (I won't say who for now !) who again agreed with the aforementioned societys. This researcher explained to me that in America (where else !) paranormal researchers have ended up being sued by these type of individuals, ie, people who claim to be possessed for a number of reasons, too much to go into here !

In the meantime, inbetween my calls to England, Frank continued to phone me, pleading for help, almost crying on the phone, explaining that things were getting worse as the days wore on. "Is any-body going to help me" he pleaded ? I explained that I had been phoning around trying to get him some help, but wasn't having much luck so far, (I didn't tell him the real reasons why, not at this stage anyway !) Now I had also written to the Liverpool Spiritualist Church at Daulby Street, where I explained the full situation to them in which I hoped that they could be of some assistance to the chap. And you know, I never even received a reply !

And still the calls came, this chap was really getting desperate. Frank claimed that more Demons were in his home, "they were even interfering with him, including sticking their tongues in his ear" ! In fact, as Frank spoke to me on the phone, he claimed that one Demon was sticking it's erect penis against his leg ! So dear reader, I'm sure your wondering what on earth I thought of all this ? Was Frank in need of medical help, or was he truly in need of some spiritual assistance ? Eventually I got round to explaining about why people had been reluctant to come and see him, and that perhaps he should discuss these alarming events with his local doctor. He was none too happy with this as I kind of expected him to be. "Im not going mad", he replied, "this is poltergeists and Demons, they just won't let me alone". At this point I stressed that he should visit the Spiritualist Church in Daulby Street Liverpool, and also, wait for it....I said to him...."Tell your Demons to stop haunting you and come up and see me" ! There was a deathly silence for a few seconds, after which he replied, "But how do I do that" "just speak to them, speak to them out loud to leave you alone and come up and see Mr Robinson if they think their so clever", I went on. Well brave words from me, but were they silly ?

In a recent telephone call, Frank explained to me that things are improving, he has been to see a Spiritualist, (at a different Liverpool Church), he has also had psychic healing, and his general tone of voice seems so much better. He has also moved back in with his girlfriend, (they had seperated for a short while), and he now says that there are only six Demons now, as opposed to the ten that he had to contend with a few weeks ago. Frank has heard footsteps in a bedroom in his girl friends house whilst no one was in the room and there are still a few more visits to his Spiritualist friend before things hopefully clear up. Frank, a Roman Catholic, had, prior to my involvement with his case, been blessed by a Priest, but unfortunately this did not help at all.

My main point with this article however, is, why do some people pre-judge cases like Frank's ? OK some individuals are schizophrenic, split personalities etc, who claim to be possessed, hear voices, see things, and indeed there may be a medical reason for this, but I'm not convinced that this can apply to all cases; and for any researcher to turn a blind eye to someones "clear distress", is to me, bloody shameful. At least one visit should be undertaken for a "face to face" evaluation; to shut the door on people like Frank is a crime, and I'm amazed at the Society For Psychical Research, and The College Of Psychic Studies for doing so. OK, I only spoke to one individual from each society, and this may not be a true representation of the feelings of each society, but none the less, it was an "eye-opener" !

And we have to remember too, the fact that researchers are indeed being sued and treading deep water, particularly in America in cases like Frank's, in which the researcher did not make things better, or indeed made them worse ! (as I've been hearing), to which an end result was them facing a law suit. So there are clear pitfalls to be observed here, and I appreciate to some degree, people's feelings on this one. And to this end, I would appreciate the feelings of ENIGMAS readers on this issue. What do you think are these people crazy ? are they deluded ? Or are they truly and sadly suffering from 'Earth-bound Entities' of an unpleasant variety who see fit to force their presence on some poor individual like Frank ? Where should help come from ? To be revealed... The Strange Case of Howard and Connie Menger

(Editor's Note. OK, as readers may know, SPI tend to sit on the UFO fence, not believing one way or the other, and we always like to give a balanced view with differing articles. So sit back and learn what 1960's contactee Howard Menger has been up to)

For many years in the mid 1960's, Howard and Connie Menger of High Bridge New Jersey basked in the light of public attention with the thrilling revelations that they had undergone a repeated series of encounters with highly advanced beings from other worlds who had landed behind their home. The attractive couple offered as proof, a series of impressive photographs purporting to show space craft in flight, as well as the shadowy forms of alien beings standing against the lighted hull of these ships from distant planets. Though sceptics attempted to pull their story apart, they were unable to explain the fact that many of the Menger's neighbours had witnessed strange phenomena in the apple orchard out their back door, including tall shapes seemingly floating over high hedges with the greatest of ease.

Others told of seeing streaks of light, pulsating discs, and strange flashes from "out of, nowhere". Two men who showed up shortly after Mengers story was broadcast on a New York radio station, spent the night parked in their automobile, only to experience a period of "missing time", as well as encounters with invisible space beings who followed them for years and turned their lives around. Howard claimed on many occasions that he had received advanced technical and scientific information from the space people who he had regular contact with since childhood. He even constructed a 4ft radio controlled craft in his sign and machine shop, and claimed that after many successful test flights, he lost radio contact with the craft and that two weeks later, two men came to his house with pieces of the wreckage and said the craft was found on the Ohio-Pennsylvania border where it had crashed. The men said they were from the FBI, and warned Menger to keep quiet, and not to reveal what he knew about Interplanetary travel and the reality of intelligent life on other planets.

He had many experiences which he could not explain, including the landing of a space craft in the woods from which emerged both space aliens, and members of the U.S. Military. He could only conclude that some members of the Government were actually working side by side with E.Ts. For reason of personal safety, and National security, Menger refused to discuss his spacely adventures in public, refusing even to go on tour and promote

IT WAS REPORTED BY SOME FARMERS AS A SHIP FROM MARS WITH LITTLE GREEN MEN GETTING OUT. WHICH WE KNOW WAS NOT TRUE. THEY TOLD HIM KEEP QUIET AND NOT TO DO IT AGAIN. his book, "From Outer Space To You", which had been highly praised in America as well as abroad. For several decades he and Connie remained silent, and it is only recently that they have decided to come forward and to tell what really happened to them, and how UFOs and the New Age affect each and every one of us. Their revelations come in a new book "The High Bridge Incident". The new book contains photographs, movie frames, and statements from these "visitors" who seemed way ahead of us spiritually and scientifically.

Again, in a free country, free speech and individual views/experiences, should be available to the public. Whether Howard Menger is a charlatan or not, decides entirely upon your point of view. But let the evidence speak for itself, don't pre-judge until you review what he says !)

E.T.'s AND "LOVE" by dyan freeman.

Evidence is overwhelming that UFOs in past times, including past centuries, have very often been seen at sites where intense human emotions were activated, such as battles, religious rites, (for instance the Welsh revivals in the early 1900's). Sports events where people roar with enthusiasm or rage, etc, etc. One source that I read, states that this type of E.T. "feeds" on human emotions, being unable to feel any emotions of its own. It may in fact receive some kind of "nourishment" through being near humans who are in a highly emotional state; or these particular E.T.s may just be curious, even baffled by the phenomenon of human emotions. In any case, this does tie in with some information that indicates at least one E.T. race is responsible for these sightings, and possibly abductions of humans and/or animals has long ago bred the capacity for emotion out of its make-up.

This information in fact, has come through some channelers, for what that may be worth, and if I may remind readers of the RA materials, the "nine" who communicated through Dr. Vinod in the book about Uri Gellar which Andrija Puharich wrote. In that book, at one point seemed to be stating that they had become like computers, unable to experience emotions. Some recent material also corroborates this. What I am leading up to is this: A few weeks ago I was discussing this with a friend, and she was saying that SOME people who are abducted and/or contacted by UFO entities, experience a feeling of "great love" being directed towards them by the E.T.s, (or whoever they are....some abductees report seeing humans on board the craft where they are taken for examinations).

I found myself replying to my friend, "yes certainly, because they, [this group of E.T.s], have discovered the frequency of the emotion of love, and can emit it at will whenever they desire to use it to influence a human being". What astonished me, is I heard these words coming out of my lips without any conscious mental formation on my part, and when I make remarks in that way, I have found over the years, that those remarks are absolutely accurate. (For instance, on April the 28th, 1965, I stepped outside my office in downtown Seattle and stopped immediately, saying to myself, "Earthquake Weather" ! I then wondered if I had said it mentally to myself, or if it was channelled, or what. The next morning, one of the most severe earthquakes to hit this area, occurred at 8:29 am.) There have been other instances where I've "come up" with remarks, some of them predictions of future events, and in each instance, whenever the words arrive unbidden on my lips, or in my mind, the truth of the remark is shortly borne out.

The rationale for the use of this "love" frequency on the part of the UFO people, would be for the purpose of intergrating themselves to a selected human, so that cooperation with further plans of theirs, [the E.T.s] would be more likely forthcoming from the human, (or, if not for that specific purpose, simply to see how the human would respond to such a vibration). I can tell you from personal experience, that I have felt both love and hate, as intense vibrations directed toward me by two different people at two different times. There simply was no mistaking either one for something else. Anyone who is psychically sensitive, will also verify that these are absolutely real "feelings" when directed intensely toward oneself by another. I even make sure that the pet cats I have, are subjected to constant bathing in the vibration of love, so that if they become ill or injured, I can catch them or get them some help. This surely is a technique which would be used by those who want to control others.

Naturally this would only work on entities who have the ability to respond to the love vibration, because they themselves contain a great capacity for loving, which many creatures have. On the reverse side of the coin, there are the cold, indifferent, even sadistic types of creatures, (animals and humans alike) on whom this love vibration would not work, and for whom pure intimidation would be necessary for the purpose of control. I just read a book about M.K. Ultra, the CIA sponsored program designed to institute mind and behavior control, (via brainwashing and other techniques) in humans. If ever absolute evil existed, it was in this program and others like it !

At any rate, I just wanted to share the above thought about E.T.s and "love" with you, because I am more than slightly convinced that my insight has some truth to it. And I am more convinced than ever, that most E.T.s who contact humans via abductions, are bent on controlling, rather than helping humans. The evidence is strong on that. The channelings which come through highly evolved entities, on the other hand, are entirely different, and appear designed only for the benefit and enlightenment of the embattled human race.

U.S. U.F.O. MUSEUM.

Thinking of taking a holiday to the U.S.A. ? Interested in UFOs ? then why not combine the two and visit a UFO MUSEUM. To date there are two operational UFO MUSEUMS open to the public in America, with several more in the pipeline. The first to open is right next to the USA's most famous tourist attraction, Disney World in Orlando Florida. The museum is filled with various UFOlogical material of interest, and also hosts a retail store selling everything from official MUFON material, to T. Shirts, posters books, and even UFO models.

The museum is also on the lookout for donations of a UFOlogical interest to be placed on display. According to James Greenen, (the owner), over 60% of the visitors to the museum are from the U.K. so why not go and join them ? If you are interested in the UFO MUSEUM, then more information can be obtained from, International UFO Centre, II955, S. Orange Blossom Trail, Suite II44, Orlando, Florida 32837, U.S.A.

ENIGMAS

■ ALVINA SCOTT. Sadly I had to omit the concluding part of our Alvina Scott Abduction report, we shall however feature it in our next issue which will be our February March issue. ■ IS YOUR SUBSCRIPTION UP. ? If a cross is included in the following box, this means that your subscription has run out with this issue. We at SPI hope that you remain with Scotland's leading paranormal Journal

□ ■ THANKS. Our thanks this issue, go to Gerry Lovell of Wells Somerset England for designing our front cover with the ENIGMAS heading done by Billy Devlin of Linthithgow Scotland. Thanks also to Edward Harris of Gt. Dunmow in Essex, who transcribed from audio tape, my interview with Linda Moulton Howe. More thanks to all those who submitted items & articles for consideration in ENIGMAS, keep them coming. ENIGMAS relies heavily on the contributions from our readers so get writing NOW ! Send all contributions to the Editorial address.

Have you got something to say ? Well say it here in ENIGMAS. ■ ANTONIO VILLAS BOAS DEAD. UFOlogys most noted "celebrity" ! is dead. Antonio Villas Boas was abducted by aliens in 1957 and taken on board a Flying Saucer. Whereafter he was surprised to see a beautiful "Earth Like" woman, totally naked come towards him in which the inevitable happened, they made love ! Well you didn't think I was meaning they held an arm wrestling contest did you ! ! Antonio died in late 1992.

■ CHANGE OF ADDRESS. Any reader who has recently moved, or intends to move, do let me know of your new address, this helps to keep my records in line. ■ NEW MEMBERS. Some new members this quarter are, Corbin Hanson from De Pere, WI, USA. W.L. Callaghan from Preston. Gary Higginson from Wednesbury, West Midlands. Otto Black from Edinburgh. L. Muir from Kilmarnock. Ernestine Dodd from Elkview, West Virginia, USA, to name but a few. ■ KUWAIT. I was quite surprised to receive a letter with enclosed money to purchase a copy of ENIGMAS, for it was from a guy in Kuwait ! Now I do believe that our SPI publicity is working. ■ MORE SCOTTISH UFOS. More sightings of strange aerial lights have been reported to SPI via Jenny Randles. They have been observed in the sky near a farmhouse near Nethermill (Dumfries & Galloway) I've already looked at a video taken of these lights by the witness, nothing too impressive, but clearly "something" is there. Nick Pope of the Ministry of Defence is working closely with SPI on this one. In a long telephone call that I had with Nick, I learned that he is quite interested in British UFO reports, and he is quite prepared to assist SPI in getting to the bottom of them. Now isn't this something ! What a change in attitude. ■ BONNYBRIDGE. UFOs are still being sighted in the skies above the town of Bonnybridge in Central Scotland. Apparently some school kids observed a daylight disc in the sky. In another incident, some youths jumped into a car and raced towards another daylight disc. Sightings are appearing to tail off, or are they not being reported to me. ENIGMAS will keep you informed of any further reports. ■ OCH EYE THE FLU ! Some Scottish pilgrims who recently travelled to Lourdes, came back from their trip worse off than when they went ! For many were struck down by a flu bug, and, as my source The Daily Record explains, rather than a healthy glow, a large number came back to their sick beds. Father Roddy MacNeill was quoted as saying, "Not exactly a very good advert for Lourdes is it, you go healthy and return a wreck" ! ■ MERRY XMAS. Finally, may I wish all our readers a merry xmas and a happy new year.
